U.S. Troops Issued Tear Gas

Newsman Targets Of Water

(Times News Services)

BERLIN—American officers handed out tear gas grenades to a U.S. detachment guarding the West Berlin border today after Communist forces loosed a stream of water against photographers from the powerful nozzle of an armored car.

The incident at the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint ended without further Red action.

The brush at the Friedrichstrasse came as a crowd of about 300 curious West Berliners milled about a U.S. Patton tank on guard there.

The Communist water-armed armored car moved up after Western cameramen closed in to photograph the East Berlin scene and ignored a Red policeman's signal to move back. The water gun did a bit of spraying—nothing too serious. But at that point the American troops were issued the grenades.

Meanwhile, a new Communist restriction of travel from East Germany has been disclosed. Foreigners living in East Berlin and East Germany have been barred from leaving the Red-ruled country since the Communist clamp-down on refugees was launched Aug. 13.

Spokesman for the Swedish and Norwegian consulates in West Berlin said the Communist authorities had informed the consulates it was not possible for their nationals to travel to the West in the present circumstances. The Communists indicated the restriction was temporary, but did not say how long it would last.

Exit visas have been refused to foreign residents since Aug. 13, when the Communists slammed shut the West Berlin escape route for East German refugees, the diplomats said.

The Swedish spokesman said there are about 100 to 115 Swedish nationals living in East Germany. The Norwegian would not give an estimate.

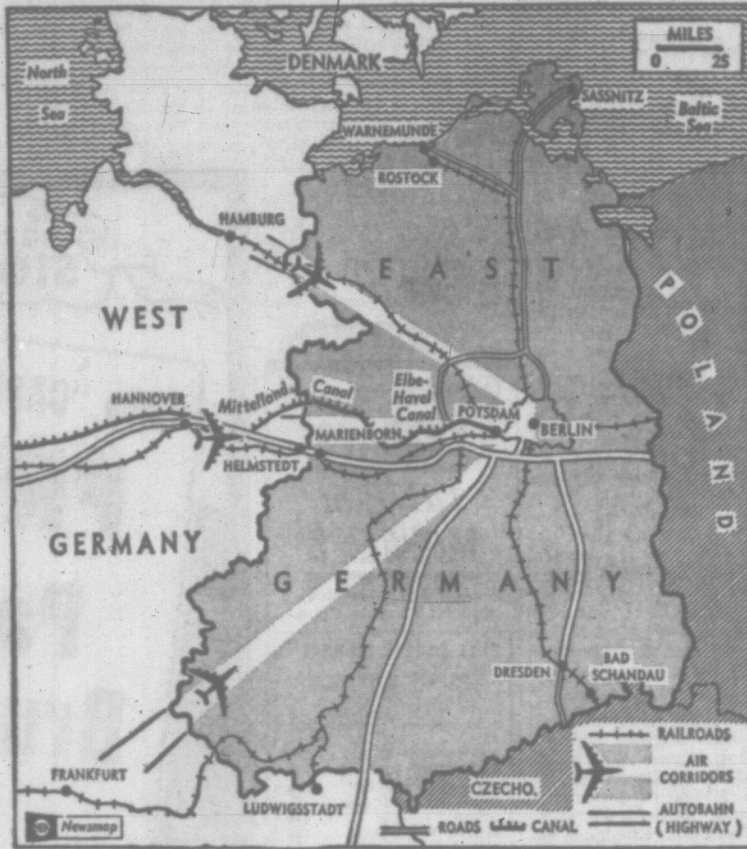

It could not be learned immediately if any other nationals of non-Communist countries were living in the eastern area.

UNEASINESS PREVAILS
An uneasy calm prevailed along the border through Berlin today but new Communist moves against the western half of the city were generally anticipated.

For the second time this week British troops were called out for an early morning practice alert. One company of the Welsh Regiment, accompanied by three Centurion tanks and three armored cars, made a foray to the industrial district of Siemensstadt.

They set up anti-tank guns and mortars and roadblocks but let civilians on their way to work pass. The practice lasted three hours.

MAIN transportation routes into beleaguered Berlin, including three air corridors threatened by latest Russian note, are shown above.

'Agitators' Using Plane Corridors, Russia Charges

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government posed a threat to the Western allies' link with Berlin in a note published today.

It said Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government is interfering illegally in West Berlin's affairs and demanded that agitators be kept from using air corridors into the city.

The 700-word note was delivered Wednesday to the U.S., British and French embassies in Moscow. It said the three countries, "utilizing the lack of control over air communications, are clearly abusing their situation in West Berlin."

'FLAGRANT BREACH'

"There was a flagrant breach of the agreement reached in 1945 under which air corridors were set aside for the three Western powers, on a temporary basis, to ensure the needs of their military garrisons, and not for subversive and revanchist (revenge-seeking) purposes of West German militarism."

The note was interpreted by Western diplomats here as a sign that one demand to be made by Russia at future negotiations over Berlin will be the banning of transport to any West German representatives into West Berlin.

And it could be presumed that the Russians would demand the right to screen passengers transported there as well as transported out. They do not now have that right. It would immediately seal off the major escape route of East Germans who have been assured of a way into West Germany once they get across the border into West Berlin.

The note also was considered another effort to "test the nerves and determination of the West in protection of the West Berlin population."

British sources regarded the Soviet attitude as extremely serious. They noted the Russians never before had challenged the Western powers over the right to carry anyone they please over air corridors to Berlin. Planes on these routes are operated by U.S., British and French companies.

DRIVE TO SEPARATE

As viewed by diplomats in Moscow, the note appeared to be aimed directly at separating Berlin's Western enclaves from the Western motherland in a drive to make the city more dependent upon East Germany. Berlin is 110 miles inside East German territory.

If the demands were fully heeded, all West Germans could be excluded, for in Soviet eyes all of them seem to fall into the bracket of provocateurs.

The note said the Soviet government had repeatedly told the Western powers about the "illegal and inadmissible interference of the federal republic of Germany in the affairs of West Berlin."

Among these items of interference, the note said, was the repeated appearance of West German officials in West Berlin. It did not specifically mention last weekend's visit of Konrad Adenauer, but stated:

U.S. SOLDIERS 'SIGHTSEEING' IN E. BERLIN

BERLIN (AP)—Three U.S. Army buses loaded with about 100 soldiers thrust past Red guards into East Berlin today after being delayed more than an hour at the sector border.

The buses were assigned to a sightseeing tour of the East sector in a test of whether the Communists would respect Allied rights of entry.

The buses passed through the barrier after the army won an argument over a question of showing identity cards.

Defiant Gesture By Adenauer

BONN (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today directed his representative, Ernst Lemmer, target of a Soviet attack, to remain in Berlin as a gesture of defiance.

The West German government announced that Lemmer, all-German affairs minister, will cancel all appearances in West Germany in connection with next month's national election.

Werner Krueger, government spokesman said Adenauer made known his decision at a cabinet meeting which discussed the new Soviet note accusing West Germany of agitation and intervention in West Berlin. The note said Lemmer has set up a Berlin headquarters directing subversion against East Germany and other Communist countries.

Access Right 'Absolute'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The state department said today the Western Allies have an "absolute" right of "unhindered" access to Berlin and freedom of movement within the city.

A spokesman cited international agreements reached with the Soviets in 1944, 1945 and 1949 and said, "There can be no question about the continuing validity of Western allied routes."

The state department was expected to issue a formal comment later today.

U.K. Rockets For Germany

LONDON (Reuters)—A British anti-aircraft missile regiment will move to Germany in the latter part of September, the war office announced today.

BCE Takeover Goes 'As Is,' Says Bennett

By FRANK RUTTER

The B.C. Electric takeover will go ahead as approved by the legislature without a change in terms, Premier Bennett said today.

Mr. Bennett told a press conference if any members of the legislature had voted against the takeover bill at the special session Aug. 1 he would have called an immediate general election.

He said critics of the terms of the deal made a noise "all out of proportion to the numbers of their people."

'VERY FAIR'
"This is a very fair arrangement," he said. This statement applies both to the deal offered B.C. Electric preferred shareholders and for future takeover of remaining assets of the parent company, B.C. Power Corp at $38 a share.

"The bill was passed by the legislature as is—unanimously—not by me," said Mr. Bennett, who returned to Victoria Wednesday after three weeks in San Francisco and eastern Canada.

If MLAs had stood up against the bill, he added, "we wouldn't have proceeded with the bill, we would have gone right to the people."

Mr. Bennett also said he is convinced he can sell B.C. power to the U.S. for "a fair, adequate price."

This could apply to both the

'NO PROMISES' ON BCE RATES

B.C. Electric consumer rates will probably be cut, but no promises are being made, Premier Bennett said today.

"In due course I would expect reduced rates," he said, now that the company is publicly owned.

"But I'm not making any promises."

Peace River, to be developed publicly by the B.C. Electric, and to the Columbia, plans for which are still going ahead as usual through the B.C. Power Commission.

"We want to build the Columbia—certainly," said the premier.

He said the power commission is spending half a million dollars a month on drilling and engineering at the sites of three Columbia dams.

Public hearings on the project will be held at the end of August, he said.

He said time would tell who had sought the best deal for

Immediate Start Due On Peace Power Roads

By FRANK RUTTER

The highways department is to start work immediately on access roads to damsites on the Peace River—first step toward construction of the B.C. Electric's big hydro power project there.

"There is a tremendous urgency to get started before the bad weather," Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the new public company said Wednesday.

He said first contract for the Peace power project will be awarded within four to five weeks. It will be for construction of a pilot tunnel to divert part of the river flow at Portage Mountain damsite, about 20 miles from Hudson Hope in northeastern B.C.

MATERIAL READY
Dr. Shrum said all the material is ready for B.C. Electric's application to the water rights branch of the lands department for a licence to develop the Peace.

"It will be made within a few days," he said.

Approval is expected to be a formality.

The access roads will probably run from Hudson Hope, already linked by a road to Fort St. John, to the two Peace damsites at Portage Mountain and about five miles down river, a point called "Site 1."

Dr. Shrum could not say how funds will be raised for the overall project—previously estimated to cost at least $600,000,000.

"That is up to the fiscal agent—the premier," he said.

'SMOOTH' OPERATION

Dr. Shrum said during his first three weeks in charge of the B.C. Electric, since the government takeover began Aug. 1, the company had operated "very smoothly."

He said further takeover of remaining assets of the parent company, B.C. Power Corp., depended entirely on its officers, and he did not know when they would come to terms with the government.

He was again cautious about the prospect of reducing power bills. But he said economy was one of the main objectives in the takeover.

"There have to be economies—there will be economies," he said confidently.

Cuba Backs Tunisia, Condemns U.S. Base

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Cuba charged today that "mercenaries" are being marshalled at Guantanamo Bay and in Puerto Rico "to be used against the independent and small countries" of Latin America.

Cuban ambassador Mario Garcia Inchausti told the general assembly's special session that French "imperialism" at Bizerte was akin to "imperialism" of the United States at Guantanamo.

He said the huge U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay "does not exist to protect the territory of the United States."

"It exists against Cuba and to fight against Latin American liberation," he said.

But while Garcia Inchausti dragged Guantanamo into the Bizerte debate, he made no suggestion that it must be evacuated by the United States.

The French-Tunisian dispute concerning the Mediterranean base of Bizerte, he said, "is not only a question of Tunisia but of all countries that have had to withstand colonialist aggression."

Garcia Inchausti placed Fidel Castro's Cuba solidly behind Tunisia in its fight with France.

'INTERESTED PARTY' IN BERLIN PROBLEM

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld said today the United Nations is an interested party in the Berlin problem and has a right to make its voice heard if the situation becomes a threat to peace.

Hammarskjöld said, however, that at the present time the world organization, with its large membership, cannot aspire to be a focal point in efforts to solve the problem. He indicated that the first step in solving problems such as this must be big-power negotiations.

The secretary-general advanced these views in the introduction to his annual report to the General Assembly.

Nfld. Villages Evacuated

BULLETIN
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A forest fire suddenly roared into the community of Brookfield today, destroying five houses and threatening a 20-bed hospital.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The tiny twin communities of Davisville and Main Point on Newfoundland's northern coast were said to be beginning to evacuate today as the province's battle against forest fires continued at a feverish pitch.

Communications to the coastal villages were impossible and officials here were too busy with a new fire development to be immediately available for further comment.

It was believed the women and children, in part at least, had boarded the federal icebreaker Wolfe and the transport department vessel Acadia in preparation for leaving their villages. The villages are believed to have a total population of less than 500.

Meanwhile firefighting equipment was flown from Montreal today to help battle the fires.

Twelve pumps and other supplies were airlifted to Gander this morning, following by a few hours 18 pumps and several thousand feet of hose.

Water bombing planes sent from Quebec and Ontario were operating as part of firefighting force that included more than 1,000 men.

TACOMA, Wash.—Carole V. Coe, 21, was driving to court Tuesday to appear in her default divorce proceedings.

There was a police siren, and she pulled to the curb. "Your muffler's too loud," said the officer. Then he asked for her driver's licence and found it had just run out.

The officer wrote a ticket for failing to have a valid licence.

It was just about all Mrs. Coe could bear. Not only was it her first ticket, but the officer was her estranged husband.

The rabbit, which was Franklin County's senior male rabbit of 1960, gave birth Tuesday night to a litter of 12 on the fair grounds after her apparently unsuspecting master had petted her up for Wednesday's contest.

VALDOSTA, Ga.—A 68-year-old South Georgia farmer and his elderly horse are drinking buddies.

Most of the time Samuel M. Weldon and the 27-year-old horse, Brownie, are working.

But on days off they head for town five miles away and engage in an unusual drinking party.

After Weldon has downed a beer, he orders another bottle and feeds it to Brownie.

"He loves it better than I do," said Weldon with a hearty laugh.

Brownie has over-indulged on occasion. But Weldon said he tries to prevent this because "when Brownie gets a few too many under the collar he sort of acts like a crazy man."

BALTIMORE — Three Negroes staged an apparent elaborate "hoax-in" at a well-known downtown Baltimore restaurant—and were served along with the white customers.

The men, one robed like a maharaja and the others in formal diplomatic attire, stopped at Miller Brothers Restaurant Tuesday afternoon.

Theodore Cook, the head-waiter, said a spokesman for the group told him the robed man was the finance minister of the new African nation of Gabon, and that the party had come from conferences at the state department in Washington.

Cook said in view of past snubs of Negro diplomats in Maryland and "Governor J. Millard Hawes' request that restaurateurs be particularly careful and courteous to foreign dignitaries, I seated them."

The Allied troops patrolled the border area close to the concrete walls and barbed wire fences set up by the Communists to prevent East Germans from escaping to the West.

Moscow radio said the Allied patrolling amounted to military provocation. But there were no incidents involving the Allied troops.

West Berlin police said Communist border guards at one crossing point in the U.S. sector threw four tear gas bombs at 40 West Berlin youths listening to a news broadcast from a police truck's loudspeaker. But a strong wind blew the gas back on the Communist side of the fence.

Another possible move appeared to be the cutting of West Berlin's rail links with the West, which are operated by the Communists. The East Germans charged Wednesday that West Berlin troops are sabotaging the Communist-run elevated train system through West Berlin.

Otto Arndt, general manager of the railroad, said if this continues, "serious disturbances" in rail traffic between Berlin and the West could result.

About 27 per cent of the total freight going in and out of West Berlin moves by rail. All night the Communist East German radio repeated Arndt's warning in its regular news broadcasts.

REPEAT CHARGES

The East German news agency early today repeated the Communist charge that West Berlin is an Allied espionage centre and said the border restrictions "have damned the criminal activities" of the spy agencies.

"Draining this spy swamp is on the agenda," the agency added.

Meanwhile, there was still no way today for West Berliners to get special passes now required for visits to East Berlin.

OFFICES NOT OPENED

The East Germans imposed the restrictions Wednesday and said two offices would be set up in West Berlin to issue application forms for permits. But West Berlin authorities refused the Communists permission to open the offices.

An official of the East German railroad said today that he did not know what the East German authorities would do now about the permits.

West Berlin authorities had not imposed any restrictions this morning on the few East Berliners crossing to the West although the city government said Wednesday it was examining possibilities of keeping "undesired" East Berliners out.

$12.3 Million School Bonds On Sale Soon

Premier Bennett said today the B.C. government will issue $12,300,000 worth of school bonds in early September.

"This will completely take care of all bank loans school districts have for construction," he told a press conference.

Almost every school district in the province is involved in the deal, he added. The bonds will mostly be bought by government accounts—such as the civil service pension fund.

"Official representatives of the Bundestag and government of the federal republic of Germany also arrive in West Berlin by the air corridors and proceed directly from the airport to make demonstrative 'inspection' tours of the city and make aggressive and hostile declarations against the German Democratic Republic and the Soviet Union."

ORGANIZED MOBS

Their arrival was accompanied by the organization of mobs and demonstrations, at which appeals for aggression against the peace-loving neighboring states, and for reprisals against the democratic forces . . . were openly proclaimed.

The note concluded by telling the three Western powers that theirs was the full responsibility and that they should "immediately take measures to terminate the illegal and provocative actions of the federal German Republic in that city."

Westerners in Moscow felt that the Russians were pushing on a point of Allied weakness. The original agreement providing air, land and water routes to Berlin sought primarily to assure provision for the occupying garrisons. By interpretation it has been extended in practice to providing support for the city.

In the treaty recognizing the sovereignty of West Germany, the Allies expressly reserved West Berlin as occupation territory. This was a necessary reservation to protect occupation rights, shared jointly with the Soviet Union.

The new note was looked upon here as only one more step in the preparation of the Soviet position to be taken at coming talks—once agreement is reached on when and where they will begin.

TWO RESORT AREAS THREATENED BY FIRE

WINNIPEG, Man. (UPI)—A forest fire in the Duck Mountain forest reserve in northwestern Manitoba injured two firefighters, burned out a road construction camp and was threatening two summer resort areas, reports reaching here said today.

A party of 12 firefighters trapped in the blaze Wednesday was reported safe today after escaping by way of one of the many lakes in the area.

The fire covered 12,000 to 15,000 acres and was burning through valuable timberland. It was being fought by 170 men, 16 bulldozers and six pumps.

'Thousands' Saved City by Esquimalt

Victoria taxpayers have been saved thousands of dollars in water rates by Esquimalt council, Esquimalt councillor G. K. Sammon said Wednesday.

He said when the city put up its water rates Sept. 1 last year it originally wanted to effect an increase of 65 per cent.

"We felt it was too much and hired independent auditors, and as a result we found that the proposed rate was about 20 per cent higher than it should be," he said.

The investigation resulted in city water users being charged an increase of only 40 per cent, he claimed.

Esquimalt, which buys its water from Victoria, did not pay the increase. One view at city hall is that Victoria has lost $20,000 because of this differential.

A special meeting of city council was to be held this afternoon to increase Esquimalt rates 40 per cent to bring them into line with rates already being paid by Victoria residents.

Mothers Panicked By Rumor

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A law against rumor-spreading was proposed Wednesday following a recent rumor that sent panic-stricken mothers fleeing from their jobs in a Moscow plant to rescue their children whose lives allegedly had been "gambled away" by bandits.

The proposal was made by a militia lieutenant-colonel in an account of the incident Tuesday in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

The security official said the incident occurred after mothers working in one of Moscow's biggest machine tool factories heard that their children's lives were being used as stakes in a card game at the factory kindergarten, 26 miles outside the city.

The mothers dashed to the kindergarten but were immediately assured that the children were in no danger, the official said.

He said an investigation to trace the origin of the rumor eventually discovered that it was started by a 12-year-old boy and an illiterate cleaning woman.

A 30-letter version of the Latin alphabet was adopted in China in 1956 to replace the 30,000-character Chinese script.

RUSHES HOME—Chief Soviet delegate to the nuclear test ban conference in Geneva, Semyon K. Tsarapkin, left suddenly for Moscow today only eight hours after the arrival of U.S. Ambassador Arthur Dean. Soviet spokesman said Tsarapkin had been recalled to Moscow for briefing before stalled talks resume Monday.

Britain's Oxford and Cambridge Universities, dating from the 12th century, were the only ones in England and Wales until the 19th century.

Offer Accepted

COLOMBO (Reuters)—Ceylon has accepted a Canadian offer of 1,000,000 rupees about $200,000 toward the cost of setting up a central trade school. The school will provide practical and theoretical training ranging from carpentry to bringing them into line with rates already being paid by Victoria residents.

In making the announcement, John D. King, the company's vice-president-marketing, commented, "The Consul 315, we are confident will prove extremely popular with the Canadian motoring public. Its ease of handling, both in traffic and on the highway, economy and proven overall durability and reliability will earn, quickly, we believe, a high degree of acceptance for this car."

The unmistakable classic Ford lines of the Consul 315, present an overall purposeful, functional look that motorists associate with Ford of Canada passenger cars.

While the Consul 315 responds to controls somewhat like a sports car on its wheel-base of 99 inches and front wheel track of 49.5 inches overall length of 170.77 inches and overall width of 65.2 inches clearly identify it as a family car.

The stamina, durability and safety built into this car has been thoroughly tested over the past two years in Europe, Africa and North America on 100,000 miles of every type of road and in a complete range of temperatures and climatic conditions.

A low centre of gravity, disc brakes on the front wheels, excellent visibility, light responsive steering and a compact 34-foot turning circle all combine to make driving the Consul 315 a real delight.

The 1340 c.c. engine develops 56.5 bhp at 5000 rpm to provide a fine balance between performance and economy. A four-speed gearbox with column shift lever provides a high standard of performance under all load conditions. Tests in traffic and on the open road indicate an excellent fuel consumption.

FAMILY SEDAN PERFORMS LIKE SPORTS CAR

OAKVILLE, Ont.—The range of British Ford cars in Canada has a new family type of car it is announced today by the Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited. The Consul 315 is a smartly-styled four-door sedan that combines many desirable family-car features with a performance that is similar to that of a sports car.

WEATHER NOT ALL TO BLAME

Political Crisis In Red China Over Poor Crops

HONG KONG (Reuters)—A bad system, rather than bad weather, is to blame for Communist China's agricultural shortages which have necessitated big grain deals with Canada and Australia, says Professor Stuart Kirby, head of the department of economics and political science at Hong Kong University.

The professor believes the Chinese Communist party is facing today an acute political as well as a severe economic crisis.

"Agriculture has always been the weak point of modern communism," he declared, citing lack of personal incentive in the system as perhaps the most important factor in China's present plight.

Kirby, one of Hong Kong's authorities on Chinese affairs, has analysed the Peking regime's repeated claims in the last three years that bad weather, or "natural calamities" as they say, has caused repeated crop failures.

Writing in Current Scene, a magazine published by the United States consulate in Hong Kong, he says the party planners' have neither overhauled nor recast their programs to improve their country's defences against its climate.

But they have relaxed their basic organization in the country with each successive emergency, allowing the peasants more individual interest, slightly larger plots of land for their own use and a little more freedom to grow sidelines.

COMMUNES FADING

The commune system, as originally planned, has been modified and decentralized practically out of existence, the professor says, and "free markets" for trading in specified commodities are allowed in some places.

The Communists have found that the only effective way to increase production is to repeal one aspect after another of rural communism, and progressively to restore a little of "capitalist" self-interest.

The professor sees this, coupled with the malnutrition of the masses, as the source of a political threat to the regime, recalling that Chinese dynasties for centuries basically have risen and fallen on agrarian difficulties and the rural rebellions which grew out of them.

Struggle of Conscience

NO ONE CAN DOUBT THE sincerity of the New Democratic Party's members in Parliament who favor Canada's withdrawal from NATO. It is because these gentlemen, led by Mr. Argue, are so completely sincere that they now face an agonizing decision of conscience.

The New Democratic Party's convention, after a vigorous argument, rejected the former policy of the CCF which demanded that Canada quit the Western alliance altogether. Canada, the convention declared, should remain in NATO, provided that it did not hold nuclear arms or distribute them to its members. There were additional reservations on Canada's membership but under the pressure of Mr. Douglas, Mr. Coldwell and other elder statesmen of the party, the convention refused to accept neutralism in the world struggle.

Now Mr. Douglas says that the members of the former CCF in Parliament will obey the convention's "clear-cut directive." If so, they must completely reverse themselves on what the convention delegates called a "life and death" question.

Speaking for "the CCF-New Party group," before it became the new Democratic Party, Mr. Argue told Parliament during its present session that "in this day and age and at this time Canada would be better advised to dissociate herself from regional military alliances" and he moved that Canada's contribution to NATO be reduced to $1. "To make the position of the CCF Party clear," he put on record the resolution of the 1960 CCF convention which demanded "immediate withdrawal from NATO."

Mr. Herridge, the foreign affairs spokesman of the CCF and one of Parliament's most respected members, reiterated Mr. Argue's dictum. He said that the direct costs of NATO to Canada this year would be $455 millions and added: "Just compare those figures with that of nearly 700,000 unemployed. We in the CCF unhesitatingly say that we believe these large sums can be more fruitfully spent in providing employment at home and assistance to underdeveloped nations abroad." A man of notable courage, Mr. Herridge advanced the same views at the New Democratic convention but was out-voted in the end.

Ignoring for the moment the non sequitur of Mr. Herridge's economic argument (as if NATO expenditures did not employ Canadians), the question is how he, Mr. Argue and the other New Democratic Party members in Parliament can possibly obey its directive without repudiating their well-known convictions.

No member of Parliament will always agree with every detail of his party's policy. A reasonable compromise of conflicting views, an agreement on general direction, is all that any party can hope to achieve. But in an issue of supreme importance, touching "the life and death" of the nation, as the New Democratic convention put it, men of conscience can hardly repudiate their deepest convictions.

The deep schism in the new party's foreign policy is visible to all. While respecting their sincerity, Canadians will await with interest the views of Mr. Argue and his colleagues in Parliament when these questions are discussed again shortly, as they must be, at a time of world crisis.

The Partners' Dilemma

THE CURRENT UNITED NATIONS debate on Tunisia poses an acute dilemma for the United States and its Western allies.

The Bizerte crisis is significant enough in itself, of course. Not only does it involve France in a serious local quarrel which is added to the similar long-existing problem of Algeria, but it constitutes another facet of the general African problem of emancipation from European control and influence. At the moment Tunisia poses as unanswerable a question as Algeria.

But the ramifications of the Bizerte struggle could prove even more serious than the immediate implications. With the question brought into the United Nations for discussion by its 99 members, the Western allies face an embarrassing choice.

On the one hand is France, a key factor in the Western alliance and led by Charles de Gaulle whose unyielding demeanor has become his trade mark. On the other is an African people joining its voice with other African peoples for removal of foreign influence—in this case a French military base.

As background elements there are widespread Western feelings that France would be better out of Africa, since its interests there have drained its blood and treasure for a decade, plus the generally accepted policy of disengagement that Britain and other countries have followed in regard to former colonial territories and dependencies.

France's allies are faced with a tortuous decision. If they side with France in the Bizerte controversy, they run the risk of offending the rising African nations, and opening themselves to a damaging propaganda barrage from the Communists who will be quick to charge colonialism, oppression and other crimes.

If, on the other hand, they support Tunisia in its claims, they will offend France—and General de Gaulle—at a time in world affairs when Western unity is essential. Already there have been difficulties with the French leader over NATO support, over nuclear development, over Berlin policy and other matters including Britain's membership of the European Common Market. To abandon him on Tunisia in the United Nations vote would blast a serious gulf between the Western partners.

It will be a cruel decision, and one to be compromised and avoided if at all possible. Britain has already made an attempt to blunt the horns of the dilemma. It has opposed the Afro-Asian resolution on the question not on a matter of principle but merely as "not being likely to contribute to a solution." The resolution itself is not strongly condemnatory, although Russia has threatened to force a stronger one if there are attempts to water down the present motion.

The vote is expected this week and it will be an anxious counting of heads. Tunisia was able to muster a majority—50 of the Assembly's 99 members—to call the special session. But how the eventual vote goes is secondary in many respects to its inner effect on the West.

Canada Produces a Cost-Cutter

A NEWS ITEM FROM BURBANK, California, provides one of the most cheerful announcements concerning Canadian production that has been published for some time.

Robert W. Prescott, speaking from that city for the Flying Tiger airline has announced that the Canadian-built CL44 cargo plane can cut air freight rates 30 per cent, according to experiments on the United States-Japan route.

Little detail is provided in the brief item. But if it means that a Canadian-built aircraft has been able to increase the attractiveness of transpacific air shipment by that percentage, then Canada is turning out a commodity that should be highly competitive with the best planes in that particular business.

This is a reversal of too many reports on Canadian production. Our costs in so many instances keep climbing to a point where we are hard pressed to match the services and commodities produced by other countries.

It's time we got back into the competitive markets with articles that perform better and cost less to operate.

Problem of the New Towns

THE BEST LAID PLANS, AS Mr. Burns pointed out, don't always yield the anticipated results. Such, in part, is the case with some aspects of Britain's "New Towns."

The towns, it seems, are generally satisfactory. The people who come to them just have trouble adapting. There's too much space for the family recently removed from a congested area in an old city.

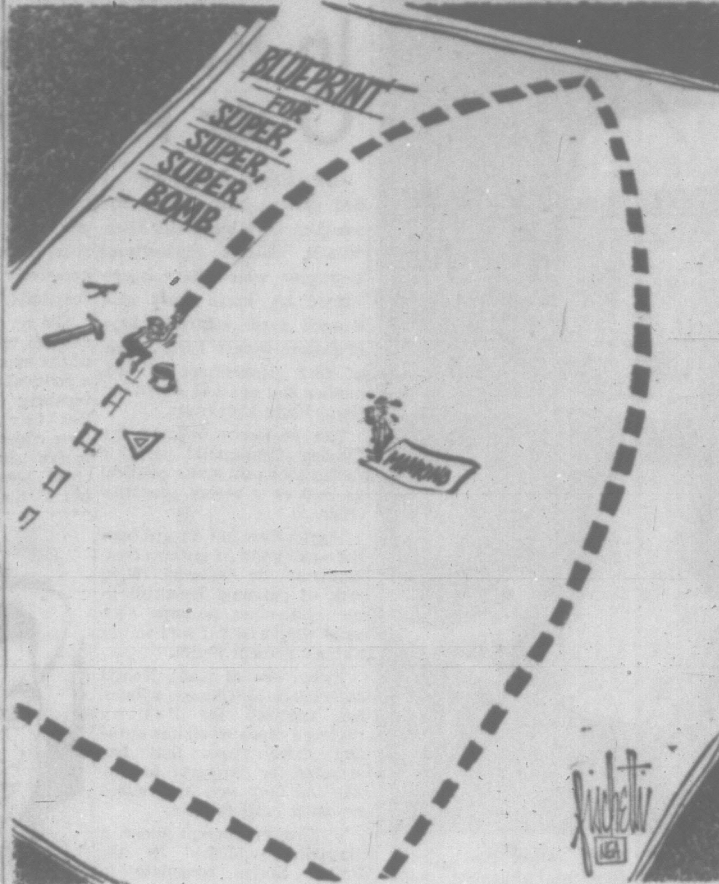

The people located in different parts of the "new town" are strangers to one another. They have few means of determining common interests. Never having gardened in the city, they lack an immediate interest in gardening.

So the new inhabitants sing the "new town blues," suffer from boredom—but in most cases for a relatively short time only.

Into the new towns come such institutions as town centre buildings, new shops, meeting halls, community clubs, dance halls, moving pictures and so on.

And then, according to one community development officer, there is always the chance that a newcomer from a congested city area will experiment with gardening. That usually cures the blues, says the official. Apparently the new towners set down roots whenever their plants do.

'You're Going to All This Trouble for Li'l Ol' Me?'

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Human Smorgasbord

THAT storm-tossed problem, the present place and future role of Under Secretary of State Chester Bowles, has now been solved by a quite decided singular, quite conspicuously unannounced compromise.

Alsop

To permit more orderly management of the State Department, Bowles has been quietly stripped of most of the customary policy-making authority and administrative responsibility of the principal Under Secretary of State. The Under Secretary for Economic Affairs, George Ball, has been given the responsibility and authority thus taken away from Bowles.

Large Thoughts

To satisfy Bowles, meanwhile, he has been left with his title and all its superficial perquisites. He has also been given a general commission to think large thoughts, on the ground that he is a good idea-man. And he may further receive a more specific commission to interest himself in the welfare of the underdeveloped and uncommitted nations, which have always aroused his enthusiasm.

The fact remains that this compromise makes Bowles the exact opposite of the famous concubines of the Emperor Gordian, as described by Edward Gibbon. He is more for show than use. Ball, whose gifts for decision and dispatch long ago commended him to President Kennedy, has become the principal Under Secretary of State in all but name. And Ball's deputy, Assistant Secretary Edwin M. Martin, must now carry most of the responsibility for economic affairs which the Table of Organization allots to Ball.

As is usual in such cases, the very existence of this peculiar new arrangement may be denied, or the shifts of authority and responsibility may be officially minimized and made to seem trifling. But the Bowles compromise is a decidedly important and interesting event, nonetheless.

There are several points to note about it. In the first place, it has a history.

Missed Message

At their first White House luncheon, when President Kennedy told Bowles he had better take another job, Bowles did not get the message that he was being fired. Hearing that his words had fallen upon deaf ears, the President then sent an emissary to the State Department to tell Bowles he had indeed been fired. With Bowles's encouragement, the emissary returned to propose the precise compromise which has now been made.

This did not satisfy the President. He sent his emissary back to the State Department, to tell Bowles that the President wanted him out. There followed the weekend of the grandiose Bowles pressure campaign—the solicited message to the White House from Adlai Stevenson, the begged-for editorials, and all the rest. This was followed by the second White House luncheon, at which the President did not fire Bowles.

Consider these circumstances. They mean that Bowles has stayed on as Under Secretary after being told in plain terms that the President did not want him to stay on, and after consenting to being deprived of most of the usual duties and powers of his office.

This display of proper pride, of a quick sense of the governmental proprieties, and of strong will to self-sacrifice, is unique in recent annals.

But even if Bowles so clearly thought that Duty, the stern daughter of the Voice of God, commanded him to remain in office at all costs, the President equally clearly did not share this view. The whole history indicates that the President would have made no audible protest if Bowles had suddenly decided to join a community of Indian swamis on his recent visit to his favorite subcontinent.

The best guess is that the President finally consented to keep Bowles out of consideration for Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

After Reflection

This is not to say that the Secretary of State made the smallest objection to the President's original plan to fire his Under Secretary. But after reflection, the President evidently decided he ought not to make Rusk the target of an organized pro-Bowles uproar at this particular juncture, as would certainly have happened if the Under Secretary's urge to self-sacrifice had been frustrated in the end.

Nonetheless, the Bowles compromise is wrong in principle and wrong in practice. In practice, it is jerry-built and will surely cause trouble later on. It also violates the principle that coherent policy-making demands cohesion among the policy makers.

The President will never be satisfactorily served by his foreign policy-making apparatus, as long as it is staffed by a sort of human smorgasbord.

'Of Some Significance'

D.R. Mikhail Antonovich Klovko, the sandy-haired little professor of general and inorganic chemistry from the N. S. Kurnakov Institute, is a far cry from the "I Chose Freedom" refugees of a decade ago. He is not a man haunted by fears of the midnight knock; he has no tales of terror, no lurid accusations to bring against the Khrushchev regime. His oral statement at a press conference was so lacking in ideological substance as to disappoint a good many eager reporters. But for all that Dr. Klovko, a fed-up Ukrainian scientist from a country intoxicated by its achievements in scientific fields, is a figure of some significance for our day.

Western

The first thing to be said about Dr. Klovko is that he rings true. At his conference at RCMP headquarters he was nervous, even a little confused, as one would expect.

He was obviously irritated by the attempt of the Soviet embassy to represent him as a mere tourist and a "no-body in science." This showed, he said, that "diplomats know even less of chemistry than chemists know of diplomacy."

Correct Version

But he was also much concerned to correct inaccuracies which had crept into accounts of his experience in Canada, including reports that he had been awarded the Order of Lenin and that he had been interviewed by three members of the Soviet embassy when in fact the third person had been a Professor Kost.

Until Wednesday Dr. Klovko was a member of the Communist party, as he had been in 1930 "except in the terrible year, 1937." This was probably a reference to the Stalin purge, although he made no mention of it; indeed, Stalin's name was not spoken in the whole course of the press conference. (Nor, for that matter, was Khrushchev's.)

His membership had, of course, lapsed—very much to his relief, it would seem—when he committed the "greatest crime against the Communist party," that of fleeing the country.

In listing his distinctions, Dr. Klovko also mentioned an award for his services to Soviet-Chinese friendship. It did not appear to occur to him that there was anything political about this. Indeed, he appeared to have cast off ideology like an old coat.

Used Clothing

One could not help wondering how many Soviet scientists wear their Communism in the same fashion; as a garb decreed by convention, required for preferment but ill-fitting and as welcome to the wearer as an overcoat on a July day.

What Dr. Klovko had come to talk about were the restrictions on his scientific work. He showed no interest in questions about Soviet rocket achievements and dismissed impatiently suggestions that he had come to Canada with scientific secrets.

Outside his own field, he knew what he read in the newspapers, although everyone knew that Pasternak had been brought under great pressure to refuse the Nobel prize. Even in the field of chemistry Dr. Klovko would not make sweeping statements about the relative positions of Western and Soviet science.

Labor Issues

Re your article of Aug. 17 on the Victoria Council meeting, where it was advocated by a member that a general strike would assist in clearing up a lot of issues on the labor situation here in this province. I am wholeheartedly in agreement with Mr. Brodie that there has to be a housecleaning in this labor movement and by that I don't mean excluding Communists from participation in union affairs. I do really share Mr. Brodie's concern but not his conclusions; the situation here does not call for strike action.

On the same question, I take exception to the remark by one named Fred Bevis, representing the Electrical Workers' Union, "That the unemployed are taking a narrow outlook, being concerned only with getting work." Coming from an individual delegated to represent a body of highly skilled men, this is a gem!

It is quite evident that Mr. Bevis has not yet learned the basic fact that food, clothing and shelter are primarily the first and foremost needs of mankind, all else is secondary, regardless of the "ism" of the regime in power.

An unemployed man is not interested in the study of economics—political, industrial, etc., etc.

The whole blame, in my experience, rests on the shoulders of the leaders of the trade union movement. On this I agree with Mr. Brodie.

Union constitutions, international and local, sound like Greek or Latin to the lowly dues-paying member. The trade union today has lost contact with its members, it's just another business like the real estate office down the street, the grocer, the butcher or the shoemaker.

What Mr. Bevis means, I think, that the unemployed do not take sufficient interest in why they are out of work.

There is no reason for us to believe in any long-lasting peace in industry, there just cannot be, it is impossible. The nearest answer I could suggest would be state ownership of all basic industries. Exploitation of man by man in any language can only lead to trouble.

In some preferred fields Russia might be ahead but he thought generally that Soviet chemists were down a bit.

He had three particular grievances. One was that the Soviet Academy had refused to publish many of his works. He showed one in Chinese which had never seen the light of day in the Soviet Union.

Dr. Klovko attributed this treatment to some public criticism of leaders of the academy which he had delivered in 1948 and which was apparently still held against him. He had taken issue with the manner in which certain colleagues were distorting the history of Soviet science. While he did not say so, his offence must have been committed at the time of the Stalin campaign to find Russian "firs" in every field of human endeavor.

One-Sided

Dr. Klovko's printed statement—much more precise than his remarks at the press conference—also spoke of the scientist in pure research being "hampered by political considerations." He did not elaborate on this point but did complain of inadequate facilities for his work and generally of the one-sidedness of Soviet science.

His second complaint was that "we are not allowed to know what is going on in other countries." He had joined a philosophical society, not because he had any pretensions as a philosopher, but because it was the only means by which he could obtain access to books from abroad.

He found himself, according to the written text, "depressed by the lack of contact with the outside world, the falsity of information, and the difficulty of self-expression."

The third grievance had to do with working conditions in Moscow. Dr. Klovko agreed that scientists in Russia earn, generally, about five times as much as workers in other occupations. But what is true of wages is not true of accommodation.

After 35 years as a research scientist, he still enjoyed a single room in a basement. Through the window, which opened on a courtyard, poured the fumes of heavy trucks. The neighboring streets, infested by "hooligans," were unsafe at night and his home, such as it was, had four times been broken into by thieves.

New Opportunity

Despite all that he must have been told in his long years as a member of the Soviet Communist party, Dr. Klovko apparently has no doubts as to the character of this free country. He is sure that he will find here what he could not find in Russia.

He may be typical of those many well-educated Russians who have become a problem for Mr. Khrushchev by demanding with increasing impatience amenities which the regime is not yet in a position to provide. It is not easy to square one room in a basement with promises that at some ever-receding date Russia will overtake and surpass the United States.

Throughout the Klovko incident, the behavior of Canadian authorities towards the Soviet embassy has been scrupulously correct. For lack of time the questions of a score of correspondents went unanswered on Friday. Care was wisely taken, however, to ensure that an opportunity was afforded a Soviet reporter to address a question to Dr. Klovko. The Russian correspondent, probably with equal prudence, declined the invitation.

Let it not be said that we are a nation of slaves. We have fought in two global wars to preserve a form of democratic way of life. Can this be forgotten like a worn shirt you throw away?

Mr. Fred Bevis is very wrong and so is our friend Brodie. The labor movement is in bad shape when we hear such utterances from gentlemen alleged to represent labor in Victoria.

Immigration

Let's be frank and honest with ourselves. Why have our French Canadian politicians always been so keen on immigration? It's simple when we realize at least 90 per cent of the European immigrants are of the Roman Catholic faith. Their policy is naturally more votes, hence more political power for the Roman Catholic faith. Also we had 500,000 unemployed last winter. Why not cut out immigration until we see what this winter has in store for Canada?

Expropriation or Confiscation?

While most of us applaud the taking over of the British Columbia Electric Company operation by the Bennett government, with the feeling that this should have been done years ago; nevertheless, thinking people will deplore the manner and method employed in the takeover.

The Bill presented to the Legislative Assembly for this purpose dictates the price that will be paid and, please note, forbids any recourse to arbitration or appeal.

What is astounding in this enlightened day and age, is that a group of so-called legislators could perpetrate and put on the statute books a piece of legislation of this kind. All the tenets of good government, fair play, human rights and justice, are thrown in the trash can by this spurious Bill.

I wonder how these same legislators would feel if, for some reason, the government decided to take over their own private property at less than fair value and deny them the right of appeal to the courts for just treatment? We would hear screams to high heaven, and justly so.

What surprises me is the apathy and silence of our business leaders, boards of trade, chambers of commerce and other public bodies. Could it be that they are still suffering from shock?

The only real protest to date has come from outside our province. If this legislation is allowed to go unchallenged, God help British Columbia.

REPORTING

OTTAWA—Even as they intensify their anti-nuclear campaign, the ban-the-bombers are losing the battle to keep atomic arms out of Canadian hands.

So long as nuclear disarmament proposals had a fighting chance to win East-West agreement, the anti-nuclear groups like the Canadian Committee for the Control of Radiation Hazards could hope with reason to influence the government at least to postpone the atomic decision.

But the Berlin crisis is changing the psychological climate in which the anti-nuclear groups operate. Now the chips in the East-West struggle are so nearly down that time for delaying a decision is running out on the government—and Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said enough to make it clear that, unless the international picture brightens considerably, the decision will not be to the bomb-banners' liking.

In his speech at Halifax on Aug. 15 the PM said that NATO forces "must have the best and most effective defence weapons available to them." Does that include atomic weapons? It is difficult to argue otherwise.

Diefenbaker also said, in the same speech, that the government would accept a NATO decision to arm NATO troops with nuclear weapons under a joint control system to be agreed upon. This would mean atomic warheads for those Long John ground-to-ground rockets the army is acquiring from the U.S. for service with the 5,500-man brigade in Europe. It would mean atomic armament for the F-104G strike aircraft with which the air division in Europe is being equipped. It probably would mean atomic weapons for the naval anti-submarine force that is committed for service under NATO command.

The PM admitted months ago that Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles cannot achieve maximum effectiveness without atomic warheads. Presumably the same is true of the CF-101s on order for the home defence squadrons. Such armament would go a step further than the acceptance of nuclear arms for Canadian components of NATO forces in Europe. It would mean bringing atomic weapons onto Canadian soil under, at best, joint Canadian-American control. But having taken the atomic plunge in NATO, the government would find it hard to hold out against the atomic arguments of the U.S., its NATO ally in continental defence.

It is against these somber prospects for its cause that the radiation hazards group is renewing its appeal for signers to its "No nuclear weapons for Canada" petition to the government.

Having pushed ajar the door for Canadian nuclear armament, the PM switched to a loftier plane at Sarnia three days later: He advanced the idea of a western declaration of freedom, "a creed of what democracy means," a modern-day Atlantic Charter.

Such grandiloquence may impress some voters, but it won't cut ice with Khrushchev. Only force and a determination to use it rather than surrender will impress the Russian leader.

But the PM knows that too. He returned to Ottawa and cabinet meetings on the question of whether to reinforce Canadian troops in Europe as a gesture of Canadian solidarity behind the U.S., Britain and NATO in their promises to defend the freedom of West Berlin.

Emergency Food Rationing Plan Readied In Washington

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Washington became the first state in the U.S. Wednesday to start action on a food-rationing plan for a national emergency.

The 750,000 heads of households in the state probably will register for the program the week of Nov. 6. Governor Albert Rosellini ordered the registration.

Charles C. Ralls, state civil defence director, said temporary ration cards will be issued for use until a national emergency rationing program is set up.

"We want to get this big move out of the way soon," he said. "We won't have time if tensions increase."

Yugoslav Youth Apathetic

BELGRADE (AP)—A new generation is coming of age in President Tito's Yugoslavia—youths who have known nothing but a Communist regime. Yet many of them and the country's Red rulers are strangers to each other.

It is a continuing battle by Yugoslav Communists to reach the youngsters, especially the more sophisticated ones in the cities. The party is doing a better job with the country youth. The urban boys and girls who have grown up since the enthusiastic days of the war-time partisan struggle are more interested in jazz, jeans and jalopies than they are in politics.

The problem of youth is one that gets an airing almost daily in the Yugoslav press.

Politika, a Belgrade daily, recently interviewed Mika Tripalo, president of the central committee of the People's Youth of Yugoslavia. He complained that some young intellectuals "do not understand changes at present under way in our social, and first of all, in our economic system."

Diplomats and others in Belgrade say the youngsters giving the Communist trouble are not anti-Communist, just not interested politically. They feel Yugoslavia has had its revolution and that sacrifice is no longer necessary. Clad in blue jeans, they like to walk the city boulevards or sit in coffee houses and talk. Jazz clubs are springing up around the country.

The government has taken other measures to reach the youth.

Perhaps the most successful are road gangs of boys and girls helping to build Yugoslavia's new highway system. No one is forced to join the gangs, but many find it an easy way to have a vacation.

They only work part of the day. Afterward comes swimming, campfires and all the trimmings of a picnic. A few indoctrination courses are thrown in, but on the whole it is a free vacation, with good food and good fun.

A Direct Line

WASHINGTON (UPI)—For a moment as I was reading the newspaper recently I thought that I had picked up one of last year's editions by mistake.

The thing that caused this temporary confusion was the published list of the day's congressional committee hearings, which I peruse each morning before going to work.

The schedule looked normal enough until I came to the listing for the Senate foreign relations committee. Its witnesses, the paper said, would be Henry C. Lodge, Alfred M. Gruenther, Thomas S. Gates Jr., and Christian A. Herter.

Speaking these names over softly to myself, I found that they sounded vaguely familiar. Then, after turning them over in my mind a few times, they began to fall into place.

Lodge, Gruenther, Gates and Herter, I suddenly remembered, were prominent members of the Eisenhower administration as ambassador to the UN, NATO commander, defence secretary and secretary of state.

After glancing at the newspaper dateline to make certain I had a current issue, I started to wonder what was bringing them back to Capitol Hill. A Democratic-controlled Congress doesn't normally do much consulting with out-of-office Republicans.

At first I speculated that perhaps someone had neglected to tell the foreign relations committee that the administration had changed hands. The committee, being so engrossed in foreign affairs, might not have noticed what was happening at home last January.

It then occurred to me that possibly the committee was engaging in some sort of "does Macy tell Gimbel?" experiment between the previous administration and its successor.

As it turned out, not to prolong the suspense any longer, the erstwhile Ikenmen were returning to the witness chair to lend bipartisan support to a bill to create a new disarmament agency.

When I dropped in on the hearing, Lodge was telling the committee that the bill should give the director of the proposed agency direct access to the president. But Senator Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) questioned whether this could be accomplished by legislation.

"Congress could pass a bill giving the director a direct line to the president, but there is no way to require the president to be on the other end," Gore pointed out.

This may be true, but I don't think the committee needs to worry about it. Since it was President Kennedy who proposed creating the disarmament agency, he presumably would be willing to talk to its director.

Furthermore, you'll recall, when the president answered his private phone not long ago, he found himself connected with someone who was trying to call an animal hospital.

In a pinch, possibly the disarmament director could reach Kennedy through the vet.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

'Canned' Plants Prove Popular

Some gardeners are able to move plants around from one place to another in their gardens at almost any time of the year.

They are successful, not because they are naturally lucky but because they are naturally careful and observant.

With the present trend to selling many kinds of plants in cans of varying sizes, almost a complete new garden could be planted in midsummer or during the warmest weather.

The first care of the gardener should be to see that the planting area is moderately damp, and the second is to be reasonably sure that the plants have an established root system in the cans.

Before trying to remove the plants, fill the cans with water, and let them drain. Then invert the can, holding the soil around the stem on the palm of the hand, and give the rim a sharp tap or two on a firm bench edge.

If the plant does not come out with a few taps, it may be necessary to use tin-snips to cut down the side and part of the bottom.

Trying to pry out the plant will result in torn roots.

After planting, spray water around the plant, and with conifers over the foliage too. Indeed, most plants which are moved in any way will benefit from having water sprayed over the foliage each day, or several times a day in warm weather.

Discretion must be used when the leaves are broad and shiny, such as camellias, to avoid having the hot sunshine on the leaves when wet.

The soil around should, however, be kept moist, in order to provide a moist atmosphere around the plant by evaporation.

In some cases, gardeners erect a temporary screen of sacking which they keep well dampened during the warmest part of the day, in addition to keeping the soil dampened in the root area.

New U.S.-Russia Trade Concept To Hit Canada?

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Canadians, whether through honest conviction or because of simple greed, have generally been great advocates of unrestricted trade with the Communist bloc as one of the foundations of better international relations and the surest way to easing world tensions.

The U.S. attitude which has prevailed for better than a decade, sharpening in intensity following the Korean war, that trading with Communist bloc countries was tantamount to trading with the enemy has come in for widespread derision from many Canadians.

Gordon Bell

JFK Creates New Atmosphere

President Kennedy, fulfilling promises made during the election campaign to revise the "sterile" and "negative" concepts of trading with Communism, has pushed through the Senate several amendments to the Battle Act which create an "entirely new atmosphere" (as one state department official described it) in U.S.-Communist bloc trade relations.

By executive action President Kennedy has caused the defense department to reverse a ruling forbidding sale of machine tools to the USSR. The treasury department has lifted its ban on importation of a number of Russian trade items. The commerce department has worked out an interpretation of rules which makes permissible the export of low-cost surplus farm commodities to Iron Curtain countries.

Approved for export now as "non-strategic materials" are such items as ball-bearings, machine tools, power transmission systems, aircraft and automotive spare parts, electrical machinery and a number of

Difficulties, Complications

How quickly and how deeply Communist trade can penetrate into the U.S. is difficult to foretell. Even with the Kennedy administration smiling benignly on Soviet selling efforts there is bound to be resistance on the part of American importers, partly on ideological grounds but even more so for the practical reason that Communist countries have poor reputations for delivery and quality. There are difficulties and complications as well in setting up trade channels between a free economy and the state-run Communist trading organizations. Still, if the price is right—and to the Communists price bears no relation to cost of

And any suggestion that Canadian trade with Communist countries might be hampered by U.S. influence—e.g. the famous case of the mythical Red Chinese order for Canadian-made Ford trucks—has been greeted with howls of fury and linguistic declamations of Canadian sovereignty.

Well, the time appears to have come for testing of this Canadian attitude judging from recent executive and legislative action in the U.S.

other industrial products and chemicals.

Naturally, American firms are expected to buy from the Soviet bloc as well as sell to it. Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, in fact, has set up an active program to persuade American firms to import Communist goods.

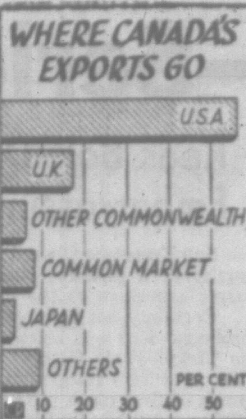

It is at this point that Canadian sincerity is put to a stern test. For the list of goods which Russia has made known it wishes to sell reads like a list of Canada's major exports to the U.S.

High on the Russian list are asbestos, furs, lumber, pulp and paper, ferrous metals and various alloys.

No one with the slightest knowledge of Russian trading methods can doubt that Russia can underprice Canada in the U.S. market—or any other market for that matter—if it is necessary to do so in order to earn U.S. credits with which to buy American-made goods needed in Soviet industry. Russian price-cutting in aluminum, oil, grain, gold and other commodities is too well known for there to be any doubt on that score.

production—any wall of resistance to Communist imports would soon develop cracks. However, if the Communist bloc does manage to pre-empt a significant portion of traditional Canadian exports to the U.S.—as B.C.'s traditional lumber market in the U.K. has been largely pre-empted, for instance—Canadians can comfort themselves with the thought that they are, after all, making a contribution to the easing of world tensions.

On the other hand, the realization may begin to dawn that to the Communists trade and commerce are but further weapons in the struggle for world domination.

MOST TO U.S.—More than 90 per cent of Canada's exports go to five countries or groups of countries. Graph shows where Canada's 1960 export trade of $5,400,000,000 finally ended, with some 56 per cent of the exports going to the United States. (CP Newsmap.)

Hoffmeister to Join New Forest Group?

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—The Prince George Citizen says that it is expected that former British Columbia agent-general in London, B. M. Hoffmeister, will be offered the job as head of the new Interior forests interests of Noranda Mines, Ltd.

Noranda's subsidiary, Walte Amulet, Ltd., recently purchased two large lumber mills east of Prince George and announced it would investigate the feasibility of building a pulp mill in this north central part of the province.

SUDBURY MINERS BRAWL AT MEETING OF UNION

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—A meeting of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) Local 598 erupted in a fight Wednesday night and police were called in to restore order.

President Don Gillis called police when a clash developed between his supporters and those of district president Mike Solski, a long-time opponent of the Gillis faction.

Chairs and bottles were thrown during the scuffle and Gillis said "some of the boys got beaten up pretty badly." None required hospital treatment, however, and no arrests were made.

Strike Talk Mounts At U.S. Car Plants

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler stood pat today on their labor contract offers to the United Auto Workers against mounting pressure from the union that the companies come up with something better or face strike action.

Present contracts covering nearly 500,000 workers at Big Three plants expire next Thursday night.

UAW leaders centred their fire on GM and Ford—the likeliest candidates for strike targets. Meanwhile, UAW President Walter Reuther bargained under a lid of secrecy with American Motors Corporation on the company's profit-sharing offer.

UAW Vice-President Leonard Woodcock Wednesday filed unfair labor practice charges against GM with the national labor relations board here after the company for the third time rejected a union demand for information on prices and profits. Woodcock accused GM of failing to bargain in good faith. He said the union needed information on the company's price-profit formula to counter company claims the union's bargaining goals were inflationary.

Most of the strike talk so far comes from the UAW's negotiators at Ford.

GM, along with Ford and Chrysler, offered UAW members a seven-cent hourly increase annually during the next three years and extra benefits in pensions, layoff pay and insurance.

Population of the United Kingdom rose by 2,440,000, to a total of 52,675,000, between 1950 and 1960.

New B.C. Political Party To Be Organized Oct. 27

B.C.'s new political party will be created Oct. 27 when an estimated 500 delegates from three groups meet at Vancouver.

Organizers for the New Democratic Party's founding convention expect 150 representatives of labor unions and 350 CCF and new party club delegates.

A draft constitution and policy platform are almost completed, and will be circulated throughout the province in the second week of September. Seminars are planned to discuss them before the convention.

They have been drawn up by a 12-member committee headed by Vancouver lawyer Frank McKenzie.

Organization will be patterned on the national party founded in Ottawa at the end of July under leadership of Saskatchewan Premier Tommy Douglas.

The CCF faction will be represented on the basis of provincial constituencies; new party clubs will all send delegates; labor representation will be two delegates for the first 100 members of an affiliated union plus an extra delegate for each additional 500 members.

Labor councils and the B.C. Federation of Labor will also have delegates. The 16 CCF MLAs will probably retain their old party name in the legislature until the next provincial election.

The CCF will wind up its affairs and pass out of existence at a one-day meeting to be held the day before the new democratic party convention.

The J.C. Federation of Labor is also holding its annual meeting just before Oct. 27.

First coins issued for what is now Canada were silver pieces struck by Louis XIV of France in 1670.

MARIS 13-10 TO MISS RUTH'S HOMER RECORD

NEW YORK (UPI)—Although Roger Maris of the New York Yankees is running ahead of Babe Ruth's 1927 home-run pace, the man-to-man betting in New York is 13-10 that Maris does not beat Ruth's record of 60 home runs in 154 games.

In professional wagering, a bookie will lay $6 that Maris does not beat the record in 154 games against $5 bet by a Maris admirer. But if a Ruth reverer wishes to bet that Maris does not beat the record, he must pay up $7 against the bookie's $5 that Maris does.

The man-to-man price against Mickey Mantle beating the record in 154 games is 2-1.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

There was time this week, before the Lions and Montreal set football back a few decades, to drop in at Little Saratoga, Vancouver's fob-watch racetrack. They call it Exhibition Park but it has other names too. Horsemen cry over its curves, more drastic than those of Zsa Zsa Gabor. Punters weep at the sight of their horse trying to get the rail from an outside post. Scaling Matterhorn in tennis shoes is easier.

There has been talk that B.C. Jockey Club plans to do something about the bends next year, or the year after or when there's money in the till. A new six-furlong strip, wider with banked turns, will replace the present five-eighths of a mile oval, 'tis said.

Anything would be an improvement. But the belief here is that no six-furlong track anywhere can offer as true a test of racing as a mile track.

On the larger surface a horse breaking from the outside has a chance in a sprint. He can be restrained early, pick his way through the field, come into the stretch two to four lengths behind the leaders and still run them down.

They'll Swim Pacific for Right Goods

On the bull-ring at Exhibition Park, a speed horse breaking from the outside—or a slow starter—might as well stay in the barn and play poker.

The inside speed holds the rail, makes the outside early starter collapse from the fatigue of losing ground on the turns. The slow starter can't advance on the inside without using dynamite, has to charge around three or more horses on the turn. By the time he gets to the stretch he finds he has run out of racetrack and the leaders simply stagger to victory.

B.C. Jockey Club settled on Exhibition Park rather than Lansdowne, a beautiful mile layout, because the former is "more accessible," offers patrons "a better view" of the races. Lansdowne was less profitable in 1960 than Exhibition Park, they said, in final justification.

The mutual play at Exhibition Park has been sunny and clear this year. It might have been wholesome at Lansdowne too. The "better view" at Exhibition Park rarely pried extra dollars from punters. The only scenery that shakes a true horseplayer from his studies is the two-legged kind.

As for "accessibility," there's room for argument that EP is better located than Lansdowne. My conviction is that racetracks, like liquor stores and burlesque bins, do not succeed or fail by their location. They could be on an isolated island and still do a handsome trade.

Did Colwood Attract Mr. D's Eye?

Vancouver is hardly a city of defined borders today. Fantastic numbers of people commute to it from Richmond, Ladner, Tsawwassen, White Rock. Is EP any easier for them than Lansdowne? Certainly not. Nor is it easy for anyone when the Pacific National Exhibition is rolling. Add the Lions playing at Empire Stadium and you can understand why some traffic policemen seek more peaceful pursuits such as flagpole painting or training wild animals.

Whether B.C. Jockey Club abandons EP altogether or plows more money into it is of no direct concern. Except, of course, that the trend of Jockey Club activity on the mainland may be followed on Vancouver Island where they hold the franchise to make money.

Highly-informed sources (agents H-O-T and C-H-A) say that Mr. Jack Diamond has taken a long look at Sandown and then turned to see what had died to leave such an odor hanging around. He is not unaware, it is reported, that a mile-track exists at Colwood.

Nobody can do anything about Colwood this year. But unless the Jockey Club picks up the cheque for a bushel of improvements at Sandown, Colwood could catch the money the next time around.

THE WHITE BRIGADE... Philip TV Lee, as rabid a football follower as Leo Phan, exercised his literary license with this rhapsody, entitled:

"CHRONICLE OF A SLOGAN"

The Lions roar in '54.
Then take a dive in '55.
Look quite sick in '56.
Close to heaven in '57.
Laid out straight in '58.
Quite supine in '59.
Less than frisky in 1960.
Almost done in '61.
Due or through in '62."

Five Win $5,200 Double

BEL AIR, Md. (AP)—Five $2 daily double ticket holders won a payoff of $5,237.60 each at Bel Air race track Wednesday.

The five tickets were sold on Uncle Sid in the first race and Kid Rover, winner of the second. Both winners paid more than $100 straight in the mutuels.

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes picked up Don Allard tonight and he became the 13th quarterback candidate to face processing by the eastern conference club since the departure of Sam Etcheberry.

They claimed Allard from Toronto Argonauts for the $350 waiver price.

MOSCOW (AP)—Igor Novikov, 32-year-old teacher from Yerevan, won the world modern pentathlon championship for the fourth time Wednesday and his native Russia romped off with the team title. The United States finished in third place.

Novikov piled up 5,217 points in the competition's five events. Ivan Derugin, of Russia, was second with 5,092, and Andras Balczó, of Hungary, third with 5,070.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Tommy Bolt was handed a retroactive 30-day suspension Wednesday by the Professional Golfers' Association appeals committee.

The minimum punishment, which did not include any fine, was retroactive to July 30. That was the day Bolt was given an indefinite suspension for using "bad language" in the clubhouse at Olympia Fields in Chicago, site of the PGA tournament.

VANDALIA, Ohio — Dr. George Genereux of Saskatoon shot 199 of a possible 200 Wednesday but was still one away from nine others in the North American clay target championships at the 62nd Grand American trapshoot.

Nine marksmen made perfect scores to force a shootoff. Several hours and 175 targets

'$ %!'—I MISSED

It's good for the emotions—if not the greens—to let a little steam loose now and then, as Judy Hoetmer found out Wednesday in the U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Tournament at Tacoma. Miss Hoetmer, national collegiate champion, was somewhat chagrined when she missed a long putt, but after she'd finished burying her putter in the green she went on to score two victories to qualify for today's quarter-finals.

Lions May Use Kapp Against Eskis Monday

Coach Wayne Robinson and general manager Herb Capozzi were all smiles today despite the fact that Joe Kapp will not be in the B.C. Lions' lineup for tonight's game against Regina Roughriders.

Robinson said that Kapp would watch tonight's game from the sidelines but will start Monday against Edmonton Eskimos if he learns the B.C. plays in time.

The former Calgary Stampeder quarterback was obtained Wednesday in one of the biggest trades in Canadian football.

UNHAPPY WITH STAMPS

Capozzi said that Kapp, who refused to sign a Calgary contract this year, has agreed to terms with the Lions and "it is just a matter of signing the contract."

Said Kapp in Calgary, "In all honesty, and you can quote me as saying it, I was not as happy as I should have been with the Stampede."

He discounted stories that he would rather play football in the United States by saying, "I've agreed to go with the Lions, and I feel that my future is in Vancouver."

SCHLOREDT TO PLAY

The Lions will go with quarterback Bob Schloredt tonight, despite the fact that the one-eyed rookie is still in some pain from a pinched shoulder nerve.

Lions will be without defensive end and tackle Ed O'Bradovich, quarterback Jim Walden and end Bruce Claridge, who they traded to Calgary in exchange for Kapp. New York Giants tackle and guard Bill Crawford was also included in the deal.

In the other half of tonight's two-game WFC card, the undefeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers will tangle with the undefeated Edmonton Eskimos at Winnipeg in their first meeting of the season.

The winner will join Hamilton Tiger-Cats as the only undefeated teams in the Canadian Football League.

Dead Ball, Hah! Not So in 1884

NEW YORK (AP)—It's time a myth that has stood all but unchallenged for 77 years was exploded.

The myth concerns Ned Williamson, infielder with Chicago White Stockings in the embryo days of the National League.

The double assault on Babe Ruth's home run record by Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees has focused attention once more on Williamson's 27 home runs in 1884.

Williamson's home run total, which withstood all challenges until Ruth hammered 29 in 1919, is still regarded as one of the most fantastic slugging feats of all time. Historians have pointed out pitchers in Williamson's day stood only 50 feet away from the batter, that the ball was heavier than a mackerel and just as soft, and that there were no fences to hamper outfielders chasing a fly ball.

But on examination of the 1884 National League season contains some surprising revelations.

A total of 308 home runs were hit that year, more than three times as many as were hit the previous year or the following year. Of that total, 194, or 63 per cent, were hit in Chicago.

The White Stockings had a team total of 129 homers of which only 12 were hit on the road. Williamson hit 25 of his 27 homers in his home park.

The following item from an issue of the 1884 Sporting Times is self-explanatory:

"Homer hitting reached a new high in 1884. In Chicago, the introduction of a faster ball and a ground rule change caused by 'markers' in the outfield playing area permitted an abundance of four-base pop flies."

The "markers" were barriers placed in the outfield at unspecified distances. Any ball hit past those barriers was ruled a home run.

The following year, at the insistence of league officials, the markers were removed and the old ball was restored. The home club in those days had the privilege of choosing the type of ball.

Williamson's homer output in 1885 was three, the same number he hit in 1883.

Reds Bolt Door After Embarrassing 14-0 Rout

San Francisco Giants tossed a clubhouse celebration worthy of a pennant clincher—and who's to say it wasn't a prelude to the real thing?

Certainly not the faltering Cincinnati Reds, whose clubhouse door was bolted tight Wednesday night after the "Jekyll-Hyde Giants" tied one record and set another in a 14-0 romp that moved them to within four games of first place in the National League.

Only a month ago the Giants were counted out of the race but today they are riding a seven-game winning streak and have won 13 of their last 15 games in a drive that recalls the "miracle pennant" of 1951.

It was difficult to tell which was more tumultuous—the Giants' clubhouse celebration or their thunderous five-homer 12-run ninth-inning rally that made a shambles of what had been a close duel between Juan Marichal and Cincinnati 18-game winner Joey Jay.

Orlando Cepeda, Felipe Alou, Jim Davenport, Willie Mays and John Orsino homered and Cepeda and Willie McCovey each had two hits in the rally. The five homers in one inning tied a Major League record previously shared by the 1939 Giants and 1949 Philadelphia Phillies and the 12 runs were the most ever scored by a major league team in a ninth inning.

SEVEN IN ROW
Marichal, 22-year-old right-hander from Ciudad Trujillo, pitched a three-hitter to give him seven straight victories and a 13-7 season mark that includes four shutouts. It was the fourth straight loss for the Reds, who now have dropped one more game than the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers and only one less than the third-place Giants.

The Dodgers plunged to their ninth straight loss when they bowed to St. Louis Cardinals, 8-7. Pittsburgh Pirates edged out Milwaukee Braves, 7-6.

In the American League, New York Yankees beat Los Angeles Angels, 8-6, in 10 innings and opened up a three-game lead when Cleveland Indians downed Detroit Tigers, 4-2. Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago White Sox, 4-0; Baltimore Orioles scored a 7-5 12-inning win over Kansas City A's, and Boston Red Sox routed Washington Senators, 9-4.

A four-run eighth-inning rally, featured by Ken Boyer's homer and Curt Flood's decisive single enabled the Cardinals to extend the Dodgers' longest losing streak since 1944. Rookie Ed Bauta picked up his first triumph and Ron Perranoski was tagged with his third defeat.

The Pirates spotted the Braves an early three-run lead on Frank Thomas' grand slam homer but pulled out the victory on Dick Stuart's ninth-inning single. Eloy Face, who shut out the Braves for two innings, squared his record at 5-3.

Roger Maris tripled home the tie-breaking run and scored the insurance tally in the Yankees' 10th-inning triumph over the Angels. Luis Arroyo shut out the Angels for the last three innings to increase his record to 11-3. The Angels

Suds Move In On Mounties

Seattle Rainiers, once Pacific Coast Baseball League kingpins, who are now hoping for a second-place finish, took a twin bill from Portland Wednesday night and climbed to within a game of the Vancouver Mounties, who lost their second straight game at Spokane.

Seattle won 4-3 and 9-2 while Spokane Indians dumped the Mounties 6-2.

That left the Mounties 11 games back of the pennant-bound Tacoma Giants, who were idled by rain at Salt Lake City, and only a game ahead of the Rainiers.

Patrick Unveils 1961 Drakes Here Saturday

Victoria Drakes' first game is only two days away and coach Jack Patrick is getting worried.

"When you stop to think about the amount of talent New Westminster has and the amount of practice we haven't had, why, it makes you stop to think," he muttered.

Drakes meet New Westminster Royals in the first game of the three-team Western Intermediate Football Conference Saturday afternoon at Macdonald Park.

Royals look ready. Drakes, according to Patrick, don't.

"But we'll do our best," he says. "We don't expect to hit top form until late in the season since we started practicing so late."

... line coach

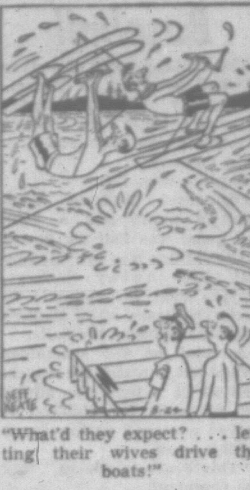

One of Patrick's biggest worries is his new personnel. He has a few dependable veterans but the club will be successful only if a good number of the rookies come through.

The Royals have also revamped but their new faces are proven quantities; they picked up many players from the defunct Vancouver Grizzlies and they know what to expect.

To help get the new help squared away, Patrick has taken on an assistant coach in the person of ex-Drake Harry Turner, who will work with the line.

If any of his hard-nosed style of play rubs off on his proteges, the opposition can expect some tough afternoons.

FAMOUS PLAYERS THEATRE

10 Victoria Daily Times
THURS., AUG. 24, 1961

ACTRESS June Allyson returned home from hospital
Wednesday after her recovery from a kidney ailment which had her bedridden for two and one-half weeks.

Cause Aided By Donkey Baseball

The mad-cap game of donkey baseball returned to Victoria Wednesday with a charity game at Athletic Park between Victoria Lions club and Victoria Jaycees.

Jaycees won, 3-1.

Difference between Wednesday's game and a sane ball game was that leg power in the former was provided by real, live, noisy donkeys. Players ride the animals to circle the bases while fielders use them to chase the balls.

A total of 652 spectators turned out to watch the match. And at $1 a head for adults and 50 cents for children it proved a money maker for a worthy cause.

"This beats television," was one comment.

"We had some donkey baseball here before, some years ago," said Lions Club president Bert Young. But donkey-damaged players, limping off the field, weren't too sure if there will be a repeat next year.

RED ARMY, U.S. AIR FORCE

Competition by Music

VANCOUVER (CP)—Armed forces of the two leading world powers have marched into Vancouver this month with only music as a weapon—and the city has been conquered by both.

First was Russia's renowned Red Army chorus, which packed Exhibition Forum with 6,000 persons for each of four performances Aug. 10-12. The troupe of 180 musicians, singers and dancers was making its North American premiere at the start of a cross-Canada tour.

Now the United States Air Force band is drawing a capacity crowd of around 3,000 persons for each of two daily performances at an open-air theatre only 300 yards away.

Repertoires of both groups have concentrated on national, military and folk music and songs but both have added something special for local consumption.

The Russians sang O Canada and Vive La Canadienne.

The Americans, an 80-man group including 30 vocalists billed as the singing sergeants, has presented a specially-composed Pacific National Exhibition march.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

Less Power Needed On Aluminum Boat

The increasing use of aluminum in boat building is due to advantages which this metal has over other construction materials.

An important benefit is the over-all lighter weight of aluminum craft, which means that less power is required to attain a given speed. In turn, a lighter weight engine can be employed which results in a further reduction in over-all weight.

A reduction in over-all weight has an additional significance for those who trail their boats over the highway.

It means a lower fuel consumption by the automobile, and a boat that is more easily handled at the launching site. Trailer costs are also reduced, since a trailer of lower load rating can be used. The lighter load often permits the use of a two-wheel instead of a four-wheel trailer. This cuts tire expense in half. A further reduction in road weight can be made by using an aluminum frame trailer.

In addition to its light weight, another virtue of aluminum marine alloys is their resistance to corrosion. The surface takes paint well, and because the metal does not absorb moisture, the coating has an unusually long life.

No Worry About Leaks, Caulking, Bugs

Also the seamless, welded type of construction eliminates all worry about caulking and leaks. Metals are impervious to the boring type of marine organisms, hence anti-fouling treatments may be used that are developed especially to retard the attack of organisms that attach to the surface.

Although several large pleasure craft have been custom built of aluminum, its principal application has been in the construction of outboard type of boats. It is estimated that there are nearly one million aluminum outboard craft in use today.

Now there is a growing trend toward the use of the light metal for the construction of stock model inboard cruisers in lengths of 25 feet and up.

Nearest craft to these specifications in B.C. is Nordic I, a Vancouver-owned aluminum cruiser of 21 feet, which was built in Vancouver and described in this column of July 21. Nordic uses wood for finishing, whereas the standardized aluminum cruisers produced in the United States lean to fiberglass.

They also use seamless welded construction, while butt joints and rivetted battens were chosen for Nordic.

Extension of Giant Plant At Duncan Bay Considered

CAMPBELL RIVER—Crown Zellerbach is investigating the possibility of expanding manufacturing facilities at its Elk Falls Co. Ltd. plant, T. B. Hargreaves, resident manager, announced Wednesday.

"No decision has been made as to what form this will take or when the program will be undertaken," Mr. Hargreaves said.

It is understood surveys are under way preliminary to final engineering reports.

When plans are finalized, the announcement will be made by Mr. Hargreaves.

The $56,000,000 plant, at Duncan Bay, 10 miles north of here, produces newsprint, kraft paper for wrappings, kraft pulp for shipment to other paper mills, and lumber. It employs about 550 workers on three shifts.

COURTENAY—Janey Macaulay of Courtenay High School will share a $100 prize with Marion Frazer of Creston for a job study done on physical and occupational therapy.

The prize is offered by the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society to rouse interest in therapeutic work for arthritis.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Suggestions for the presentation of briefs to the provincial cabinet when it meets here Sept. 22 have been offered by Dan Campbell, Comox M.L.A.

Briefs should be on matters of policy affecting the area, he advised. They should be directed toward the cabinet as a whole, rather than to one minister.

DUNCAN—City council this week awarded a $34,880 contract to the Victoria firm of Wakeman & Trimble Contractors Ltd. for construction of the lagoon portion of the new sewage system being installed here.

Contract for the laying of mains went to H. B. Contracting Ltd. of Abbotsford on a tender of $93,587.

NANAIMO (CP) — RCMP are investigating an overnight break-in at a car rental office by burglars who made off with $500 from the office till. Entry was gained by forcing a window.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Tougher attitude by the courts here to combat theft is indicated in a stiff sentence handed out in Campbell River police court this week by Magistrate P. E. Lewis.

John Frederick Ferry was fined $200 and ordered to make restitution after pleading guilty to theft of gasoline from a truck.

DUNCAN—River bank protection work on the Cowichan River near the southeast boundary of Duncan is to be undertaken by the city shortly. This is the area which was badly flooded last January.

A bulldozer will be used to clear an estimated 30,000 yards of gravel from the channel in the area of the new sewerage lagoon, and to reinforce the north bank of the river which, at this stretch, is weaker than the south side.

GANGES—Norman Harris, Ganges, has carried off first prize in the Salt Spring Island Rod and Gun Club fishing derby here with a salmon weighing 18 pounds, 11 ounces. Ladies' prize went to Mrs. Ronnie Lee, Fulford, whose fish weighed six pounds, seven ounces.

Ricky Parsons, Ganges, won the junior prize with a three pound, one ounce salmon, and the prize for the largest ling cod with a catch of 20 pounds, 10 ounces.

DUNCAN—George Modeste, of Koksilah, a father of seven, Monday was fined $100 by Magistrate A. C. Sutton for impaired driving.

"It's too bad your children have to suffer for your foolishness," the magistrate told him.

DUNCAN—Funeral services were held Monday for Leopold Ashton Helen, who died at the BEACH MADE AVAILABLE BY ROAD COMPLETION

TOFINO—Alfred Beach, near here, has been made available to the public through completion of 3,000 feet of road leading from the village.

Clearing and grading was done by the village, and the provincial highways department gravelled the road.

The beach formerly was cut off by the village watershed, which now is crossed by the road. The watershed is not needed since a new source has been developed on Meares Island.

Island Scenery Equal to Alps Says Much-Travelled Visitor

CAMPBELL RIVER — The breathtaking mountain scenery and natural beauty of Buttle Lake and the Strathcona Park area equals anything Europe has to offer including the famous Swiss Alps, a well-travelled visitor said here this week.

Greatly impressed following a two-day trip through Strathcona Park by car and boat was Henry W. Steiger, a native of Berne, Switzerland, now a school teacher at Tacoma.

"The picturesque scenery and the natural beauty of the area are magnificent," he said. "This park area you have here compares most favorably to those in Europe that are heavily advertised and regarded the world over as having the finest mountain scenery."

For Mr. Steiger, who has done extensive travelling throughout the Northwest since moving to Tacoma from his native Switzerland seven years ago, it was his first trip to Northern Vancouver Island. He spent two nights at Strathcona Park Lodge and most of two days travelling up Buttle Lake by boat admiring the scenery.

"It is a beautiful setting. In fact, I would say it equals the Alps," he said.

Big New Press At VMD Boosts City Industry

Many Jobs Available As Capacity Grows

A 3,000-ton capacity hydraulic press being unloaded at Government Dock today for Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant is the latest addition to a VMD industrial complex which is designed to put Victoria in the forefront of a multi-million dollar annual steel fabricating business.

The press, largest of its kind in Canada or on the U.S. Pacific coast, forms part of a $1,500,000 investment by VMD which includes stress-relieving plate furnaces, foundry and heavier crane facilities.

$4 Million Target

Company president Harold Husband predicted many new jobs for Victorians would result when the press begins operation in a few months. Immediate target of the industrial operation is the $4 million annual pressure vessel and pipeline business in the Western Canadian oil and gas industry.

The new press and allied equipment, Mr. Husband said, also gives VMD the capability to compete in such varied fields as electric light pole standards, steel barrels, culverts and in defence products as wide ranging as submarines and missile components.

VMD purchased the press, which weighs 800 tons and will stand 70 feet high, in France where it was taken from Germany following the Second World War as reparations. The machine was built by Krupp before the war.

The huge machine was brought from France aboard the freighter Michigan in pieces, some of the castings weighing up to 70 tons. The hydraulics system and complex controls are missing and will have to be replaced by VMD.

Seventy-ton section of VMD press unloaded from Ss. Michigan.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

This paper certainly gets around. My recent reference to fat boy Billy Bunter, whose story-book adventures are collected by M. P. Paine of Victoria, brought a letter from Bunter's creator, Frank Richards of Kinggate, Kent, England.

Mr. Richards, now 85, tells me he has actually written a Bunter story in Latin and it was printed recently in the London Times educational supplement.

But not even the scholarly Mr. Richards could find a Latin equivalent for Bunter's favorite ejaculation—"Yaroooooh!"

"Bunter will continue as long as I do," he says. "After all, what's 85 in terms of history?"

Mr. Richards also wrote thrilling tales of his schooldays in British Columbia, but now confesses that these were "quite fictitious" and based on a visit here.

"It was a typewriter, not a railroad, that carried me over the Kicking Horse Pass, and I loved every line of it."

What sea creatures have taken up residence along the two-mile breakwater built for the B.C. government ferries at Tsawwassen?

Freeman King and his Victoria Junior Natural History Society will find out next Sunday when they go to the mainland to explore the lichenous green edges of the breakwater.

Martin Hoffmeister of 1715 Richmond showed me a crumbling copy of the Chicago Tribune of 1889.

He found it in the frame of an old picture of George Washington and thinks it was brought here by his grandmother in the 1890s.

The faded type reveals that ham once sold at 12 1/2 cents a pound, bacon at 14 1/2 cents, creamery butter at 27 cents, pure sugar at 7 1/2 cents—and fine Chinichilla overcoats at $7 each.

Wax Museum to Open New Show in Arizona

Victoria's wax museum has proved so successful it will open a new branch in Phoenix, Arizona, next January.

Unlike the Victoria museum, which features mainly historical celebrities, the new exhibition will concentrate on famous American gunfighters of the Old West, such as Wyatt Earp, Wild Bill Hickok, Billy the Kid and the Cole Brothers.

JAN. 15 TARGET

"We plan to open in Arizona on Jan. 15," John Steele, managing director of the Royal London Wax Museum, said today. "I am going down there next month to work out the final details."

Mr. Steele said the Victoria museum has exceeded "all expectations" with an attendance of more than 150,000 since it opened April 29.

"We had a peak attendance of nearly 3,000 last Tuesday," he said, "and we are confident an all-American wax museum will do even bigger business in Phoenix.

Mr. Steele is forming a new company for the Phoenix enterprise. His partner, W. P. Enman, will manage the Victoria museum while he is away.

Wyoming Smiths Swamped

Sundry Victoria Smiths sent greetings today to the Hamilton B. Smiths from Wyoming.

"We seem to belong to a large family of Smiths up here," said Mr. Hamilton Smith, who with his wife and two children are touring the Pacific Northwest as guests of Seattle's Century 21 world's fair.

They were the first family to write asking for accommodation for the fair, which opens April 21, and their official hosts in Victoria are J. Donald Smith, Victoria MLA, and his family.

The visiting Smiths met the Wyoming Smiths at the Malahat Chalet Wednesday and after lunch drove them to the San Sebastian Motel, where they are staying until tonight. The visiting Smiths had breakfast at the Hotel Douglas followed by shopping and sight-seeing tours of Greater Victoria and the Butchart Gardens.

They were entertained at lunch at the Princess Mary Restaurant, to be followed by a crumpet tea at the home of Leslie Smith, of Eaton's, and dinner at the Net Loft. They leave for Port Angeles aboard the Mv. Coho.

Women of Sooke Win PNE Trophy For First Time

Sooke and North Sooke Women's Institute this week became the first Island group to win the PNE trophy offered for total points in the textile section of the Women's institute division at the fair.

Six members submitted 14 articles, including knitted garments, rugs and samples of needlework.

Mrs. J. Martin is institute president, and the entry was arranged by Mrs. Alan W. Smith. Members whose work was used in the exhibit were Mrs. L. C. Kidd, Mrs. R. W. Cairns, Mrs. H. Wadams, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. N. E. Fairweather and Mrs. Smith.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Baldev Singh, 512 Hillside, $25, no driver's licence. Donald M. Sanford, 4975 Prospect, $15, no eyeglasses, and $10, no trailer licence. William Walpole Watson, 2144 Ferndale, $5, failing to wear chauffeur's badge.

Centenary Planners Get Going

Centennial committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said planning for Victoria's 100th anniversary next year will begin in earnest today.

He said special sub-committees will be struck at a meeting of the advisory group to plan all phases of the celebrations and serious consideration of a permanent project will be launched.

He indicated a decision on the permanent project might not be made immediately, to ensure all possibilities get careful scrutiny.

The latest suggestions from Times' readers include: Douglas Fletcher, of Greater Victoria Sports Council, urged establishment of a $20,000 playing field for softball, baseball and soccer at Topaz Park;

HOME FOR AGED

Mrs. J. A. Cottrell, 402 Dallas Road, proposed construction of a convalescent home for aged citizens who have no suitable place to go after hospital treatment;

Mrs. Randi Halvorsen, 2066 Carnarvon, said Fort Rodd Hill should be restored and turned into a museum complete with the historic RCMP ship St. Roche now rotting in Vancouver.

Alfred Joyce, 1632 Ross, said an aquarium and restaurant should be built atop the Horse-shoe Bay cliffs along Dallas Road as a tourist attraction.

NAVY CHECKS

Ancient Cannon Ball Harmless

An old cannon ball, taken to HMCS Naden Wednesday because it was thought to be still explosive, was today found to be completely harmless.

The projectile was found by amateur historian P. A. Frattiger on Prevost Island recently. At his request two navy demolition experts went to Salt Spring Island Wednesday to give it a checkup before he placed it in his collection. Lieut. George Colwill and PO Jim Connolly examined the 9 1/2-inch diameter ball and found a slotted brass plug one inch square, flush with the surface.

They could not loosen the plug, so brought the whole thing back to Esquimalt with them.

NOTHING THERE

They succeeded in removing the plug today but found nothing inside.

"It's disappointing," a navy spokesman said.

"We were hoping to find some hidden treasure—or at least some explosive!"

The cannon ball is thought to be up to two centuries old. Ed MacFayden, a retired navy officer and former curator of Esquimalt Maritime Museum, said today it is of a type that used to be made in the mid-eighteenth century.

However, it is not known how or when the cannon ball came to rest on Prevost Island.

Saanich Resumes Watering Lawns

With cooler weather and the end of the growing season, Saanich lifted garden watering restrictions Wednesday.

A long, hot, dry spell over the last two months made watering limitations necessary in the municipality, even though there was no bulk water shortage in the Greater Victoria Water District.

Consumers were regulated due to the heavy draw on the Saanich distribution system.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 24, 1961—PAGE 13

October Start On Saanich Hall

Building to Serve Police, Fire Groups

By AB KENT

An early October start is forecast for construction of a quarter-million-dollar public safety building serving Saanich with everything from a fireman's lounge to a steam-heated jail.

For the first time it brings police and firemen under one roof, providing both departments with an adequate physical layout.

To police it means a great step toward independence from other departments, severing the need to borrow Victoria city courtroom and lock-up, for example.

BIG FIRST STEP

To other municipal departments the new structure at Patricia Bay and Vernon—the heart of the urban centre of Saanich—means the first step in a civic centre, to include next a health and welfare building, then a municipal hall, if plans proceed according to expectations.

Final specifications on the two-storey split-level building were due from architect R. W. Siddall this week, the preliminaries having been approved by fire and police chiefs.

A meeting of a special building committee headed by Reeve George Chatterton, with councillors Leslie Passmore and Joseph Casey, may be arranged next week to go over the final plans.

Tenders to begin work on the approximately three-acre site may then be called, with the construction following in about 30 days.

The concrete, masonry and glass screen building will be erected on the highest point of the overall seven to eight-acre site paralleling Patricia Bay Highway, but will have its main public entrance off intersecting Vernon Street.

From the small third-storey

There are 16,384 square feet of floor area, just six feet short of the estimate, which will bring the total cost close to the estimated $200,000-$250,000.

The fire department apparatus room for three fire trucks, ambulance and emergency truck, opens onto an apron leading onto Douglas Street, or the highway, where an allowance has been left for future highway expansion.

Working access to the police department is from the rear, off Vernon, although all enquiries will be handled at the control centre for both departments.

The main floor will have offices for police and fire chiefs, clerk of the court, prosecutor, and magistrate, with interview and witness rooms near the courtroom.

NO PRISONER'S BOX

Absent from the courtroom will be the traditional prisoner's box. Instead, an accused will sit in a small enclosure adjoining counsel's table, just below the magistrate's dais.

On the lower level are the rest of the police offices, including future crime laboratory, darkroom, fingerprinting, a gun room and 25-yard pistol range, and a juvenile department.

The four-cell jail will have visual control from a window in the central point, manned around-the-clock.

"It will be as sanitary and modern as it is possible to make it," said Chief W. A. Pearson. From its terrazzo floor to its stainless steel bars, cleanliness will be the order.

Besides the steel-lined cells there are two spares—for women or mental patients—each with individual lighting, ventilation and steam heat; wash basins, toilets and drinking water.

Chamber to Name Elected Officers Friday Morning

New officers of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce are to be announced Friday following a meeting of the board of directors at 11:30 a.m. in the chamber board room. The election was conducted by mail ballots earlier this summer.

The meeting is also expected to ratify a decision on new quarters for the organization which must leave the present premises, above the Black Ball ferry terminal by Sept. 15, chamber manager John Coppinger said today.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Why are the local highway coach operators keeping their headlights burning in broad daylight? Is this "in" with bus drivers? A.M.

A. Local coach lines officials say it is a safety measure that has been in use in the United States for some time and is now being tried in Victoria. The theory is that the sight of a vehicle with its headlights burning in daylight may cause motorists to be especially careful in approaching it. Advocates of the scheme claim it has cut down accidents substantially since it went into use.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. No will attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

CLOUDY SKIES MAY OBSCURE MOON ECLIPSE

A weather system which has been battling its way toward shore from the Pacific Ocean is going to give cloudy skies with possible rain tonight and Friday.

Amateur astronomers will have cause to grumble, since cloud may obscure an eclipse of the moon Friday evening.

The eclipse, during which 99 per cent of the moon's disc will pass through the earth's shadow, will start at 6:35 p.m. and end at 11:41 p.m. Moonrise here will be about 8 p.m.—just in time to see—with luck—the mid-point of the phenomenon at 8:08 p.m., when all of the moon will be shadowed except for a thin crescent on its lower edge.

Weather might also affect the annual Luxton Fair Friday and Saturday. Officials were hoping to boost attendance at the two-day fair from the 6,000 of last year to at least 10,000.

Weatherman William Mackie said temperatures will range between a minimum of 52 degrees tonight and a maximum of from 65 to 70 degrees Friday, depending on location. Winds will be light.

FRIDAY MEETING

Victoria Lions Club: Noon. Empress Hotel. Freeman King, president Victoria Natural History Society, "Conservation of Our Natural Resources."

PRESENCE of new Saanich police patrol on Elk and Beaver Lakes is keeping speedboat skylarking to a minimum. Patrols will be intermittent as police try coping with weekend boat traffic problem and promoting water safety. Driver is boat-owner Roy Wootton, municipal licence inspector, and policeman using portable radio is Cons. Fred Broderson. Passenger is police commissioner Stanley Eden. (Robin Clarke Photo.)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Women sometimes make the mistake of judging their figures by their weight instead of their measurements. They decide whether they have good figures by what the scales read, rather than what the tape measure tells them.

Of course, your poundage is important, also, but bony structure makes such a difference in the amount you should weigh that it must be taken into consideration. If you have a 36-inch bustline, a 25-inch waist and 36-inch hips, you cannot have much of a weight problem. If you weigh more than you think you should, it is probably because you have a medium to large frame.

Very often women who do not wish to lose weight have out of proportion measurements. Exercise is the answer to this. One woman may have gently curved hips, but rolls over the girdle. Another may have a good figure except for a protruding abdomen. Still another may have hips which are shelf-like in the back. There are exercises for every one of these and all of the most unusual feminine figure defects. If you would like to have my color chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

BEST QUESTION

Mrs. Harry Murphy, of Florida, wins one of my exclusive pressing boards for this interesting question. "Dear Eunice, 'Please tell me how to lower the bust darts and how to measure myself to be sure I am placing them in the correct position.' Mrs. H.M. Dear Mrs. H.M.,

1. Measure yourself from the shoulder to the tip of your bust.
2. Now measure the pattern itself, from the seam-line at the shoulder to the end of the dart. The dart should be 1/2" to 1" below the fullest part of your bust. If this dart is too high, it takes fabric away from where you need it the most.
3. Darts at the underarm should be exactly opposite the fullest part of the bust.
4. If you have to lower the darts, mark the correct place for the pointed end of the dart, and use the original markings for the widest part of the dart. Remember, if it is necessary to lower your darts, both the side darts as well as the darts directly under the bustline must be changed. I also would suggest not pressing your darts permanently, until you have had a fitting. It is often very difficult to remove the marks left from pressing.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Be Fashionably Overdone With 16-Strand Necklaces

By PENNY SAVER

Finally Penny has found the necklace magnifique: Not another glimmer of jewelry need be worn with this luxurious, 16-strand work of art. It will become the coup de grace, nay, the coup d'etat, of your ensemble.

Picture, for instance, a jewel-like maroon-toned suit or dress, styled with stunning simplicity, the loose short-clipped sleeves filled with deep red kid gloves, and the neckline filled, almost (oh joy!) cluttered (as Vogue says) with 16 strands of simulated pearls in many shapes and a myriad of red tones from pink and rose to maroon and fuchsia!

Shapes of "pearls" range from small tear-drop and seed to a diamond shape and oval. All strands are caught with a heavy, ornate filigree fastener. With the necklace come, if you wish, round earrings "woven" with the same beads. Price for the set is $6.50, and each piece can be bought separately.

Another very attractive necklace-earring set is made of highly-polished, natural-finish wooden beads in wood colors from beige to brown. Each of the three strands is graduated to make the necklace an important piece of jewelry.

Jewelry is finished with a leaf clip, and comes in a set with large round wood-beaded earrings, which sell separately for $2. Necklace is $4.50, and the set, $6.50.

For those whose taste despite all still tends to the conservative, Penny found (and loved) dainty bracelets with matching oval drop earrings in a synthetic jade, synthetic turquoise, or in a red stone. Delicate gold-colored settings hold oval "gems" in place. The set, priced at $5, is so finely made that the jewels can pass, beautifully, for the real thing.

What is the CAC, the Canadian Association of Consumers? It is a national organization created in 1947 by Canada's leading women's organizations to represent the Canadian consumer. It is voluntary, non-sectarian and non-political.

CAC informs consumers of what they should know for their protection and for wise buying. It discusses with government officials what laws are necessary in the interest of the consumer. CAC advises the manufacturer of the consumer's opinion with regard to his product.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"You'd have a marvelous physique if your other muscles got as much exercise as your neck muscles!"

DEAR ABBY

You Asked for It, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married nine years and have five children. My husband has worked only seven months in the past two years, and I have to find some way to help earn some money. I was fortunate in finding a job I could do in my own home, but it is getting me down.

My job is to telephone people and very courteously ask, "What kind of automobile do you drive?" I am not selling anything. I am merely seeking information. I have had the receiver slammed down on my ear. I have had people tell me to go to h—, drop dead and several other insulting things. Please put a kind word in your column for women who have to earn a living this way. I get so hurt at times I could cry.

TELEPHONE JOB: DEAR TELEPHONE JOB: While there is no excuse for being insulting, you must admit that when a woman is bathing her baby, or is elbow-deep in cookie dough, and she rushes to the phone to hear "What kind of automobile do you drive?" she has cause to be a little annoyed. Don't take these rebuffs personally. Either develop a thick skin or find another way to make a living. A sensitive soul can't last long in the telephone-calling business.

DEAR ABBY: I sometimes wonder if my husband is all there. We have been married for eight years and are both in our late twenties. He is a good husband and father, and has never given me any reason to distrust him, but he reacts him to a psychiatrist? WORRIED. DEAR WORRIED: You are married to a sensitive, sympathetic, and perhaps frustrated actor. Cherish him.

AROUND, ABOUT
San Francisco,
City of Many Contrasts

By PAT DUFOUR
You require two things to really enjoy San Francisco—a car with the climbing ability of a mountain goat and a fat wallet to buy the lovely things you see in the stores.
The city is a series of contrasts. You'll see mink-stoled women, immaculately groomed, rubbing shoulders with beatniks, complete with overgrown goatees.
—I saw one woman carrying a miniature black poodle that sported a red velvet French beret, dotted with sparkling rhinestones.
From a store where chic customers were testing imported perfumes, I could look out to see a young Negro expounding on religion in the centre of a main street. Further down, a chorus line of female strikers marched up and down outside another store swinging their hips and chanting a "Down with..." song, the tune of "Side By Side."

Source of great controversy are the flower stands on all the main streets. Licences cost them only $15 a year and the big stores object to this. Not the people, however, nor the visitors. I loved choosing between an orchid as big as my head for $1 or, for the same price, two dozen of the longest stemmed red roses I've ever seen.

WEALTH, POVERTY
In the midst of obvious wealth it's startling to see beging on the main streets. With in two blocks we passed a blind man and woman, complete with seeing-eye dogs and tin cups, and then another blind man playing an accordion.

We joined the thousands who spend Sunday afternoon at Suto on Point Lobos. Built in 1896, this three-and-a-half-acre rococo palace has everything, including a skating rink, Egyptian museum with mummies, dozens of player pianos, the first cable car and one of the 25 Tucker cars built by the swindler, Preston Tucker, in the 1940s. He took his backers for 28 million dollars.

The place is named for Adolph Suto, mayor of the city in the 1880s and King of the Comstock Mines.
Needless to say, we had to 'take in' Fishermen's Wharf which I found highly commercialized. Expensive restaurants scream their messages at you in high-toned neon lights, among them that of the ex-husband of Marilyn Monroe, Joe Di Maggio. True, you can find live crabs and other seafood, lining the sidewalks in Hollywood-styled barrels but the nearest you can get to an honest-to-goodness fisherman is the sight of dozens of fishing boats tucked unobtrusively behind this glittering facade.

Of Personal Interest

In Farewell

Mrs. H. B. Darnell was hostess on Wednesday at a farewell luncheon in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, arranged to honor Mrs. William Ellis and Mrs. J. R. Scobie, who are leaving in September for an extended visit abroad.

Extended Visit

Mr. Tony Robertson, who graduated with a BA from Victoria College last May, leaves on Saturday for an extended trip to the British Isles and Europe. He will travel by plane to London, Eng., where he hopes to teach for a year. Mr. Robertson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Robertson, 9096 Ardmore Drive.

Leaving Soon

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Montfort and their children, Gregory, three, and Gay, five months, who have been visiting Mrs. Montfort's parents for the past month, are leaving for their home in Toronto, this weekend. While in Victoria baby Gabrielle was christened in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church with Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiating. Her godparents are Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Higgins of Victoria. Mrs. Montfort's parents are Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Marling of Thompson Avenue.

Make Home Here

Rear-Admiral E. P. Tisdall and Mrs. Tisdall have come to Victoria to make their future home and are presently staying at Prince Charles Hotel. Rear-Admiral Tisdall, until recently vice-chief of naval staff of Canada, is on retirement leave.

Vancouver Guests

Guests who came from Vancouver last weekend to attend the wedding of Miss Verna Evelyn Quon and Mr. Herman Gar Leung were Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Quon, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chu, Mr. and Mrs. James Wong, Mr. and Mrs. James Dong, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Chan, Mrs. Kepment Lee, Mr. William Gum, and the Misses Vivian Lee, Dawn Bishop and Corinne Quon. Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Nan Quon of London, Ont.; Miss Winnie Quon and Mrs. Peter Quon of Edmonton, Alta., and Miss Vivian Chan, New York.

On Trinidad—Mrs. Arthur Dayfoot, a missionary from Trinidad, was guest speaker at August meeting of Metropolitan United Church Woman's Missionary Society. She explained the growth from 1867 when John Morton visited the country, to the present time. She also spoke of the East Indians, their character and progress in religion and education.

Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. C. H. R. Davis, 2275 Oak Bay Ave., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Joan Carol, to Thomas Richard Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hardy, 2624 Quadra Street. The wedding will take place September 9 at 3 p.m., in Oak Bay United Church. Rev. A. Calder will officiate. (Photo by H. U. Knight.)

Showered With Many Gifts

Miss Susan Forrest, whose marriage to FO Kim McGowan takes place in September, was honored at a shower given by Miss Ann Aylmer, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Aylmer, 5064 Lochside. The bride-elect was presented with a corsage of heather and a gardenia, while her mother, Mrs. H. Forrest and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. E. A. McGowan, were each presented with a bud vase containing small chrysanthemums and a sweetheart rose. Gifts were contained in a mock bridal cake and presented by Miss Robyn McGowan.

The guests included Mrs. S. Stark, Mrs. V. Jackson, Mrs. T. Leslie, Mrs. G. Colgate, Mrs. N. Colvin, Mrs. M. Hoey, Mrs. D. Talbot, Mrs. A. Aylmer, Mrs. H. Aylmer, Mrs. E. A. McGowan, Mrs. W. H. Marriage Vows Said in First United Church

Verna Evelyn Quon and Herman Gar Leung were married last Saturday evening in First United Church with Rev. A. I. Higgins officiating. Pink and white theme was used in church decorations and organ music was played by J. McNeill.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Quon, 2888 Douglas Street, and Mrs. Sylvia Leung, 2926 Queenston Street.

A floor-length gown of nylon sheer over satin was worn by the bride. It was styled with basque bodice featuring tiny cap sleeves and a scooped neckline of imported French lace, sparkling with iridescent sequins. Full bouffant skirt was designed in an all-round fluffy pouf effect that extended into a cathedral train. A waist-length silk illusion veil misted from a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones. The bouquet was of pink roses and white stephanotis centred with a white orchid.

Mr. Quon gave his daughter in marriage.

Bride's cousin, Miss Eleanor Quon of London, Ont., was maid of honor and her sister, Miss Lydia Quon, and Miss Rosabell Dong, the bridesmaids. Groom's niece, Karen Mark was flower girl.

Senior attendants wore nylon sheer dresses in tropic water tone and carried bouquets of pink roses and pink feathered carnations. A white organza over satin dress was worn by the flower girl who carried a parasol of pink roses and white carnations.

Hank Lum, Vancouver, was best man and ushering guests to their seats were Jeff Shong, Vancouver; Gerald Quon, Donald Eng and Laurie Simpson.

Reception was held in Club Sirocco where a four-tier cake was cut. Bride's table was decorated with pink roses and white carnations. Gordon A.

Brown proposed the toast. For travelling on honeymoon to southern California, the couple will live at 2928 Queenston Street on their stroller suit in cherry red return.

MURDER CHARGE IN 1919 ONTARIO DEATH

After 42 Years, a Confession

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (UPI) — An itinerant painter who wants to die with a clear conscience, today faced a murder trial for the death 42 years ago of a storekeeper.

Clifford O'Brien, 66, was arrested after he walked into the Sault Ste. Marie police station Sunday and allegedly confessed to the slaying of Michael Legge, 55, on July 8, 1919. Legge's death had been considered accidental.

"I promised my father that one day I would confess I murdered a man," O'Brien was quoted as telling friends. "And now I've kept my promise."

O'Brien was charged with murder here Wednesday. In his story to police, he said he had been indecently assaulted by Legge as they walked along Canadian Pacific Railway tracks near Pembroke.

O'Brien said he had been indecently assaulted by Legge as they walked along Canadian Pacific Railway tracks near Pembroke.

"I turned around and bopped him (Legge) one," the statement said. "He fell and hit his head on the railway track. Then I left."

Legge was found cut to pieces on the tracks near the city. Apparently he had been hit by a freight train and crushed under its wheels. A coroner's jury subsequently ruled the death accidental.

Inspector Bert Dickie of the Ontario Provincial Police said investigators in Pembroke had turned up witnesses who testified at the inquest. But, he said, the coroner and most of the jurymen are dead.

MINE OWNERS ON TRIAL IN S. AFRICA TRAGEDY

COALBROOK, South Africa (Reuters) — A coal mining firm and four company officials were committed for trial today on charges connected with a mine disaster here last year in which 437 men lost their lives.

The officials were charged with culpable homicide and alternatively with endangering the safety of men working in the mine and certain contraventions of mining regulations.

In the accident at the Clydesdale Transvaal Collieries Coalbrook mine, 431 Negroes and six white miners died in a cave-in 500 feet underground Jan. 21, 1960.

HARROWING WEEK is being spent by two Richmond, Ind., police officers, waiting to see if they are to become victims of deadly spinal meningitis. Collins Dickerson, left, and John Geiger administered mouth-to-mouth respiration Sunday to a one-year-old baby which had stopped breathing. The tot revived, but died Monday of spinal meningitis. Doctors say the two men, who have been taking antibiotics, will know Friday whether they have contacted the disease. (AP Wirephoto.)

Water Bombers Douse 11 Fires

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP) — Aerial warfare being waged against lightning strikes in the vast Prince Rupert forest district has saved at least $1,000,000 in timber in the last two days, district forester Ralph Johnston said Wednesday.

A lightning storm that passed over the district Monday night and Tuesday left at least 26 new fires in its wake, but the planned and well-plotted aerial water bombing doused 11 of them by Tuesday night.

More bombings were under way Wednesday on other strikes within range of the Avenger aircraft being used.

Six Avengers are bombing the fires after two patrol planes make reconnaissance flights and spot them. Helicopters with three and four-man ground crews follow the bombers in to mop up.

"We had tremendous success Tuesday," said Jones. "District Forester Ralph Johnston says it's safe to estimate the bombers saved more than $1,000,000 in timber Tuesday."

The aerial bombing activity came about deliberately after lightning strikes Aug. 5 and 13 started a large number of fires 10 of which still are out of control and burning over a total of 60,000 acres Wednesday.

Most of this containable commercial stands of fir, balsam, spruce, hemlock and pine. The foresters decided they'd be ready for any more lightning strikes and they've attacked with vigor, making use of their 15 aircraft.

YOUTHFUL 'GANGSTERS' GO TO JAIL (Compiled from CP)

PENTICTON — Two Summerland youths, Victor Campe, 17, and Kenneth Gronlund, 18, were given stiff sentences Tuesday for what police described as "gangster style" beating of two hitchhikers they picked up in their car.

Campe was given 12 months definite and six months indefinite, and Gronlund was given nine months definite and six months indefinite. Charges against them also involved obstructing police.

HARDY SWIMMER VANCOUVER — An English Bay sunbather stared in amazement when he sighted 78-year-old Mrs. Maria Kalve frolicking in the offshore surf in her house dress.

He rushed to call police. Officers came running, ready for a quick rescue. But Mrs. Kalve continued her swim even farther out when they tried to wave her in.

When she finally did come ashore her red-flowered house dress wet and clinging, she assured police there was no trouble.

The Estonian-Canadian mother of five said she always likes to go swimming in her house dress.

WINDOWS SMASHED VANCOUVER — A 29-year-old man who said he wanted to draw attention to his alcohol problem smashed $6,500 worth of windows at the downtown Hudson's Bay Co. store Wednesday night. He was charged with damage to property over $50. Police said the man showed no signs of drinking and appeared to be in good mental condition.

NEW TV STATION PRINCE GEORGE — The first television station in the Prince George area began operation this week. CKPG-TV, owned by CKPG Radio, Ltd., operates on channel three and will be seen by some 25,000 residents in the north central area of the province.

Energy Board Office Going to Vancouver

The B.C. Energy Board is moving its office from Victoria to the B.C. Electric building in Vancouver this week.

"It is a matter of convenience," said chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum, who is also head of B.C. Electric.

He said three members of the board live in Vancouver, and it will be easier to get them together for meetings.

There is space for a new office in the B.C. Electric building now that it has become government property and several former officers of the company have resigned.

Dr. Shrum said as far as he knows he will retain his energy board post.

"We still have plenty of work to do," he said.

The board will not go out of existence after completing its special study of Peace and Columbia River power for the government.

Dr. Shrum said the board will continue to study all energy resources in the province—gas, oil, coal and the potential of nuclear power.

"We haven't spent any time so far on gas and oil," he commented. The government currently is conducting an extensive survey of these industries.

IGNORANCE DOMINANT IN WORLD

PARIS (AP)—Nearly 70 per cent of the world's population lives out its life without knowing what is going on at home or abroad, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization reported Wednesday in its latest survey of information media. The report said regions in more than 100 countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America have fewer than 10 copies of daily newspapers available for each 100 persons, fewer than five radio receivers, fewer than two television sets or two seats for the movies.

U.S. Accidents Drop

CHICAGO (AP)—Accidents caused the deaths of 42,800 persons in the United States during the first six months this year, a drop of 4 per cent from the comparable period in 1960, the National Safety Council said today. Traffic deaths at 16,980, showed a 1 per cent drop from the 17,170 highway fatalities in the first six months last year.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Teen-Agers Oppose Film Curbs

By JACK HUTTON

Several weeks ago I discussed the question of restricting some movies to young people under the age of 18 and asked you to send in your opinion if you felt like it.

Well, the verdict was certainly a clear one. Canadian teen-agers do NOT feel the restrictions are fair. As a matter of fact, they feel that adults are being a wee bit hypocritical about the issue.

I read each letter that crossed my desk—and not, one of them felt that theatre owners could realistically set a hard-and-fast age barrier.

Most of your letters supported the suggestion that a teen-age panel or committee would be of an immense help in deciding which movies were suitable to be seen by teen-agers.

Most of you also seemed to support Manitoba's idea of allowing younger teen-agers to see restricted movies when accompanied by an adult. (A majority of theatre owners agree with you, by the way.)

Copies to Censors
Your verdict isn't stopping here. One of the tests of democracy is making our views known to the people in charge. Therefore a copy of this column and all of your letters are going to the Association of Provincial Censors which meets this fall.

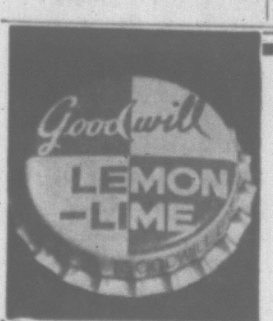

I'll let you know what happens there. But in the meantime here is how a few of you felt. (I hope we can print more of the letters in the near future.)

WE'VE GOT YOUR NUMBER... CUCUMBER!

He Followed His Tape...

HERLES HAUSEN, West Germany (Reuters)—An East German border policeman reported he escaped to the West before the eyes of his fellow police Monday by telling them he had to measure the distance to the border for a telephone cable. When he reached the frontier fence, he climbed it and fled westward.

Light takes more than eight minutes to reach the earth from the nearest star which is 250,000 times farther away than the sun.

ask Andy
HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES
Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books, or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.
Andy will answer questions submitted by mail readers and those who submit the question. He selects to answer will receive, worthwhile prizes.
The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas of Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Johnny Newman, age 10, of Quilcene, Wash., for his question:

Are white ants true ants?
The so-called white ants are in no way related to the true ants nor are all of them white. They are termites and throughout the world some 2,000 different kinds of them have already been named and classified. All belong in the insect order Isoptera—a scientific name meaning equal wings. In the termite termite colony there is always a group of teenagers, each wearing two pairs of long and narrow wings of crisp gauze.

Certain termites of the tropics build massive mansions seven feet tall. The masonry, made from mud mixed with termite saliva, is hard as concrete. Yet the anteingard of Africa rips it apart with his mighty class, and uses his long sticky tongue to devour thousands of the little termites at a single meal.

North America is home to more than 50 different termites. We regard them as pests, for they chew up railroad ties, beams and building supports. It is estimated that they do 50 million dollars worth of damage in the United States alone every year. But this destruction is not part of their role in the scheme of nature.

In the wild, they chew up old logs and fallen trees, helping Mother Nature to break up her used materials and build them back into useful soil.

Strange to say, a termite cannot eat and digest wood by itself. It must have help from certain tiny protozoa which dwell in its tiny intestines. When these protozoa are destroyed, the termite perishes.

The colony of teeming termites is a strict class or caste society. There are three or more different castes, each with its own duties. The upper crust includes their majesties the king and queen and a host of royal-princes and princesses.

The pile of little white eggs hatches into a swarm of tiny copies of the adult termites. All of the babies look alike, and it will take them two whole years to grow into adults. In the process they go through six stages of growth and some become soldiers, some workers. Some will become princes and princesses, each fitted with two pairs of wings. These will leave the nest in pairs to start their own nests. Then each royal couple will bite off their wings and the queen will soon be laying 2,000 to 5,000 eggs a day.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Cynthia Bodarte, 13, Los Angeles, Calif., for her question: What is Australia's Longest River?

The continent of the emu and the kangaroo has a river 1,600 miles long, which is a little more than half the length of the Mississippi. This is the Murray River, biggest and most important of Australian waterways. A river of this size does not seem enough for a continent almost as big as the United States.

There are several shorter rivers draining into the sea and countless streams drain inland into salty lakes. Many of these, however, carry water only after the rains. It is this scanty supply of fresh water which makes most of the interior of Australia a desert land. The situation is helped, however, by ground water under the dry areas which can be made to gush forth from artesian wells.

Air Access Challenged

U.S. Troops Issued Tear Gas

'Agitators' Using Plane Corridors, Russia Charges

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government posed a threat to the Western allies' link with Berlin in a note published today.

It said Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government is interfering illegally in West Berlin's affairs and demanded that agitators be kept from using air corridors into the city.

The 700-word note was delivered Wednesday to the U.S., British and French embassies in Moscow. It said the three countries, "utilizing the lack of control over air communications, are clearly abusing their situation in West Berlin."

'FLAGRANT BREACH'

"There was a flagrant breach of the agreement reached in 1945 under which air corridors were set aside for the three Western powers, on a temporary basis, to ensure the needs of their military garrisons, and not for subversive and revanchist (revenge-seeking) purposes of West German militarism."

The note was interpreted by Western diplomats here as a sign that one demand to be made by Russia at future negotiations over Berlin will be the banning of transport to any West German representatives into West Berlin.

And it could be presumed that the Russians would demand the right to screen passengers transported there as well as transported out. They do not now have that right. It would immediately seal off the major escape route of East Germans who have been assured of a way into West Germany once they get across the border into West Berlin.

The note also was considered another effort to test the nerves and determination of the West in protection of the West Berlin population.

British sources regarded the Soviet attitude as extremely serious. They noted the Russians never before had challenged the Western powers over the right to carry anyone they please over air corridors to Berlin. Planes on these routes are operated by U.S., British and French companies.

DRIVE TO SEPARATE

As viewed by diplomats in Moscow, the note appeared to be aimed directly at separating Berlin's Western enclaves from the Western motherland in a drive to make the city more dependent upon East Germany. Berlin is 110 miles inside East German territory.

If the demands were fully heeded, all West Germans could be excluded, for in Soviet eyes all of them seem to fall into the bracket of provocateurs.

The note said the Soviet government had repeatedly told the Western powers about the "illegal and inadmissible interference of the federal republic of Germany in the affairs of West Berlin."

Among these items of interference, the note said, was the repeated appearance of West German officials in West Berlin. It did not specifically mention last weekend's visit of Konrad Adenauer, but stated:

U.S. SOLDIERS 'SIGHTSEEING' IN E. BERLIN

BERLIN (AP)—Three U.S. Army buses loaded with about 100 soldiers thrust past Red guards into East Berlin today after being delayed more than an hour at the sector border.

The buses were assigned to a sightseeing tour of the East sector in a test of whether the Communists would respect Allied rights of entry.

The buses passed through the barrier after the army won an argument over a question of showing identity cards.

Defiant Gesture By Adenauer

BONN (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today directed his representative, Ernst Lemmer, target of a Soviet attack, to remain in Berlin as a gesture of defiance.

The West German government announced that Lemmer, all-German affairs minister, will cancel all appearances in West Germany in connection with next month's national election.

Werner Krueger, government spokesman said Adenauer made known his decision at a cabinet meeting which discussed the new Soviet note accusing West Germany of agitation and intervention in West Berlin. The note said Lemmer has set up a Berlin headquarters directing subversion against East Germany and other Communist countries.

Access Right 'Absolute'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The state department said today the Western Allies have an "absolute" right of "unhindered" access to Berlin and freedom of movement within the city.

A spokesman cited international agreements reached with the Soviets in 1944, 1945 and 1949 and said, "There can be no question about the continuing validity of Western allied routes."

The state department was expected to issue a formal comment later today.

U.K. Rockets For Germany

LONDON (Reuters)—A British anti-aircraft missile regiment will move to Germany in the latter part of September, the war office announced today.

'INTERESTED PARTY' IN BERLIN PROBLEM

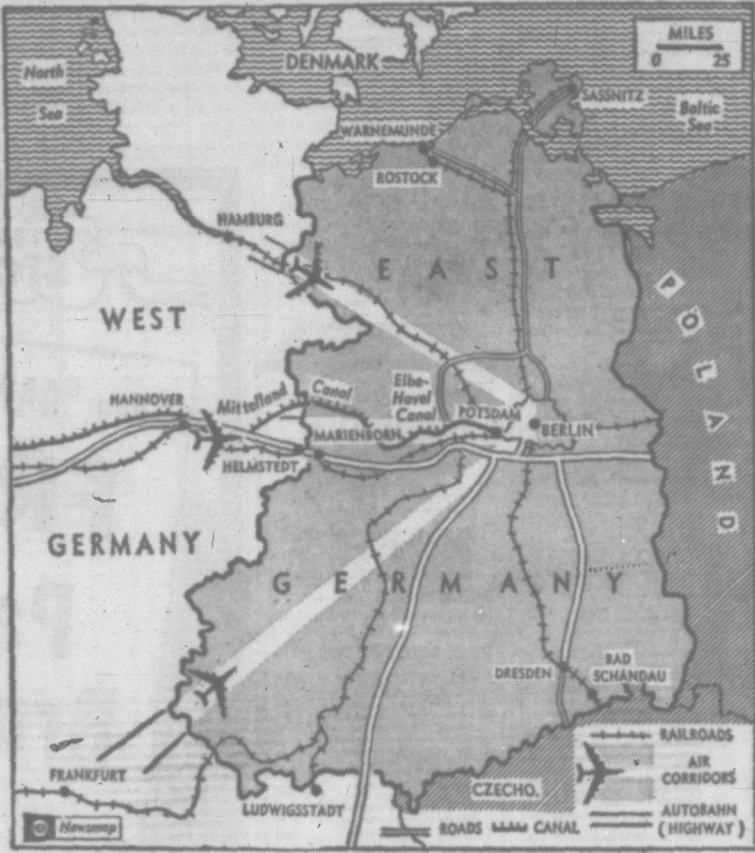

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld said today the United Nations is an interested party in the Berlin problem and has a right to make its voice heard if the situation becomes a threat to peace.

Hammarskjöld said, however, that at the present time the world organization, with its large membership, cannot aspire to be a focal point in efforts to solve the problem. He indicated that the first step in solving problems such as this must be big power negotiations.

The secretary-general advanced these views in the introduction to his annual report to the General Assembly.

Newsmen Targets Of Water

(Times News Services)
BERLIN—American officers handed out tear gas grenades to a U.S. detachment guarding the West Berlin border today after Communist forces loosed a stream of water against photographers from the powerful nozzle of an armored car.

The incident at the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint ended without further Red action.

The brush at the Friedrichstrasse came as a crowd of about 300 curious West Berliners milled about a U.S. Patton tank on guard there.

The Communist water-armed armored car moved up after Western cameramen closed in to photograph the East Berlin scene and ignored a Red policeman's signal to move back. The water gun did a bit of spraying—nothing too serious. But at that point the American troops were issued the grenades.

Meanwhile, a new Communist restriction of travel from East Germany has been disclosed. Foreigners living in East Berlin and East Germany have been barred from leaving the Red-ruled country since the Communist clamp-down on refugees was launched Aug. 13.

Spokesman for the Swedish and Norwegian consulates in West Berlin said the Communist authorities had informed the consulates it was not possible for their nationals to travel to the West in the present circumstances. The Communists indicated the restriction was temporary, but did not say how long it would last.

Exit visas have been refused to foreign residents since Aug. 13, when the Communists slammed shut the West Berlin escape route for East German refugees, the diplomats said.

The Swedish spokesman said there are about 100 to 115 Swedish nationals living in East Germany. The Norwegian would not give an estimate.

It could not be learned immediately if any other nationals of non-Communist countries were living in the eastern area.

UNEASINESS PREVAILS

An uneasy calm prevailed along the border through Berlin today but new Communist moves against the western half of the city were generally anticipated.

For the second time this week British troops were called out for an early morning practice alert. One company of the Welsh Regiment, accompanied by three Centurion tanks and three armored cars, made a foray to the industrial district of Siemensstadt.

They set up anti-tank guns and mortars and roadblocks but let civilians on their way to work pass. The practice lasted three hours.

Immediate Start Due On Peace Power Roads

By FRANK BUTTER

The highways department is to start work immediately on access roads to damsites on the Peace River—first step toward construction of the B.C. Electric's big hydro power project there.

"There is a tremendous urgency to get started before the bad weather," Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the new public company said Wednesday.

He said first contract for the Peace power project will be awarded within four to five weeks. It will be for construction of a pilot tunnel to divert part of the river flow at Portage Mountain damsite, about 20 miles from Hudson Hope in northeastern B.C.

MATERIAL READY

Dr. Shrum said all the material is ready for B.C. Electric's application to the water rights branch of the lands department for a licence to develop the Peace.

"It will be made within a few days," he said.

Approval is expected to be a formality.

The access roads will probably run from Hudson Hope, already linked by a road to Fort St. John, to the two Peace damsites at Portage Mountain and about five miles down river, a point called "Site 1."

Dr. Shrum could not say how funds will be raised for the overall project—previously estimated to cost at least $600,000,000.

"That is up to the fiscal agent—the premier," he said.

'SMOOTH' OPERATION

Dr. Shrum said during his first three weeks in charge of the B.C. Electric, since the government takeover began Aug. 1, the company had operated "very smoothly."

He said further takeover of remaining assets of the parent company, B.C. Power Corp., depended entirely on its officers, and he did not know when they would come to terms with the government.

He was again cautious about the prospect of reducing power bills. But he said economy was one of the main objectives in the takeover.

"There have to be economies—there will be economies," he said confidently.

Cuba Backs Tunisia, Condemns U.S. Base

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Cuba charged today that "mercenaries" are being marshalled at Guantanamo Bay and in Puerto Rico "to be used against the independent and small countries" of Latin America.

Cuban ambassador Mario Garcia Inchausti told the general assembly's special session that French "imperialism" at Bizerte was akin to "imperialism" of the United States at Guantanamo.

He said the huge U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay "does not exist to protect the territory of the United States."

"It exists against Cuba and to fight against Latin American liberation," he said.

But while Garcia-Inchausti dragged Guantanamo into the Bizerte debate, he made no suggestion that it must be evacuated by the United States.

The French-Tunisian dispute concerning the Mediterranean base of Bizerte, he said, "is not only a question of Tunisia but of all countries that have had to withstand colonialist aggression."

Garcia-Inchausti placed Fidel Castro's Cuba solidly behind Tunisia in its fight with France.

BCE Takeover Goes 'As Is,' Says Bennett

By FRANK BUTTER

The B.C. Electric takeover will go ahead as approved by the legislature without a change in terms, Premier Bennett said today.

Mr. Bennett told a press conference if any members of the legislature had voted against the takeover bill at the special session Aug. 1 he would have called an immediate general election.

He said critics of the terms of the deal made a noise "all out of proportion to the numbers of their people."

'VERY FAIR'

"This is a very fair arrangement," he said. This statement applies both to the deal offered B.C. Electric preferred shareholders and for future takeover of remaining assets of the parent company, B.C. Power Corp. at $38 a share.

"The bill was passed by the legislature as is—unanimously—not by me," said Mr. Bennett, who returned to Victoria Wednesday after three weeks in San Francisco and eastern Canada.

If MLAs had stood up against the bill, he added, "we wouldn't have proceeded with the bill, we would have gone right to the people."

Mr. Bennett also said he is convinced he can sell B.C. power to the U.S. for "a fair, adequate price."

This could apply to both the

'NO PROMISES' ON BCE RATES

B.C. Electric consumer rates will probably be cut, but no promises are being made, Premier Bennett said today.

"In due course I would expect reduced rates," he said, now that the company is publicly owned.

"But I'm not making any promises."

Peace River, to be developed publicly by the B.C. Electric, and to the Columbia, plans for which are still going ahead as usual through the B.C. Power Commission.

"We want to build the Columbia—certainly," said the premier.

He said the power commission is spending half a million dollars a month on drilling and engineering at the sites of three Columbia dams.

Public hearings on the project will be held at the end of August, he said.

He said time would tell who had sought the best deal for

Nfld Villages Evacuated

BULLETIN
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A forest fire suddenly roared into the community of Brookfield today, destroying five houses and threatening a 20-bed hospital.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The tiny twin communities of Davisville and Main Point on Newfoundland's northern coast were said to be beginning to evacuate today as the province's battle against forest fires continued at a feverish pitch.

Communications to the coastal villages were impossible and officials here were too busy with a new fire development to be immediately available for further comment.

It was believed the women and children, in part at least, had boarded the federal icebreaker Wolfe and the transport department vessel Acadia in preparation for leaving their villages. The villages are believed to have a total population of less than 500.

Meanwhile firefighting equipment was flown from Montreal today to help battle the fires.

Twelve pumps and other supplies were airlifted to Gander this morning, following by a few hours 18 pumps and several thousand feet of hose.

Water bombing planes sent from Quebec and Ontario were operating as part of fire-fighting force that included more than 1,000 men.

Big New Press At VMD Boosts City Industry

Many Jobs Available
As Capacity Grows

A 3,000-ton capacity hydraulic press being unloaded at Government Dock today for Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant is the latest addition to a VMD industrial complex which is designed to put Victoria in the forefront of a multi-million dollar annual steel fabricating business.

The press, largest of its kind in Canada or on the U.S. Pacific coast, forms part of a $1,500,000 investment by VMD which includes stress-relieving of plate furnaces, foundry and heavier crane facilities.

$4 Million Target

Company president Harold Husband predicted many new jobs for Victorians would result when the press begins operation in a few months. Immediate target of the industrial operation is the $4 million annual pressure vessel and pipeline business in the Western Canadian oil and gas industry.

The new press and allied equipment, Mr. Husband said, also gives VMD the capability to compete in such varied fields as electric light pole standards, steel barrels, culverts and in defence products as wide ranging as submarines and missile components.

VMD purchased the press, which weighs 800 tons and will stand 70 feet high, in France where it was taken from Germany following the Second World War as reparations. The machine was built by Krupp before the war.

The huge machine was brought from France aboard the freighter Michigan in pieces, some of the castings weighing up to 70 tons. The hydraulics system and complex controls are missing and will have to be replaced by VMD.

Seventy-ton section of VMD press unloaded from Ss. Michigan.

Centenary Planners Get Going

Centennial committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said planning for Victoria's 100th anniversary next year will begin in earnest today.

He said special sub-committees will be struck at a meeting of the advisory group to plan all phases of the celebrations and serious consideration of a permanent project will be launched.

He indicated a decision on the permanent project might not be made immediately, to ensure all possibilities get careful scrutiny.

The latest suggestions from Times' readers include: Douglas Fletcher, of Greater Victoria Sports Council, urged establishment of a $20,000 playing field for softball, baseball and soccer at Topaz Park.

HOME FOR AGED

Mrs. J. A. Cottrell, 402 Dallas Road, proposed construction of a convalescent home for aged citizens who have no suitable place to go after hospital treatment.

Mrs. Randi Halvorsen, 2066 Carnarvon, said Fort Rodd Hill should be restored and turned into a museum complete with the historic RCMP ship St. Roche now rotting in Vancouver.

Alfred Joyce, 1632 Ross, said an aquarium and restaurant should be built atop the Horseshoe Bay cliffs along Dallas Road as a tourist attraction.

NAVY CHECKS

Ancient Cannon Ball Harmless

An old cannon ball, taken to HMCS Naden Wednesday because it was thought to be still explosive, was today found to be completely harmless.

The projectile was found by amateur historian P. A. Frattiger on Prevost Island recently. At his request two navy demolition experts went to Salt Spring Island Wednesday to give it a checkup before he placed it in his collection.

Lieut. George Colwill and PO Jim Connelly examined the 9 1/2-inch diameter ball and found a slotted brass plug one inch square, flush with the surface.

They could not loosen the plug, so brought the whole thing back to Esquimalt with them.

NOTHING THERE

They succeeded in removing the plug today but found nothing inside.

"It's disappointing," a navy spokesman said. "We were hoping to find some hidden treasure—or at least some explosive!"

The cannon ball is thought to be up to two centuries old. Ed MacFayden, a retired navy officer and former curator of Esquimalt Maritime Museum, said today it is of a type that used to be made in the mid-eighteenth century.

However, it is not known how or when the cannon ball came to rest on Prevost Island.

Saanich Resumes Watering Lawns

With cooler weather and the end of the growing season, Saanich lifted garden watering restrictions Wednesday.

A long, hot, dry spell over the last two months made watering limitations necessary in the municipality, even though there was no bulk water shortage in the Greater Victoria Water District.

Consumers were regulated due to the heavy draw on the Saanich distribution system.

They were entertained to lunch at the Princess Mary Restaurant, to be followed by a crumpet tea at the home of Leslie Smith, of Eaton's, and dinner at the Net Loft. They leave for Port Angeles aboard the Mv. Coho.

WOMEN OF SOOKE

Win PNE Trophy

For First Time

Sooke and North Sooke Women's Institute this week became the first Island group to win the PNE trophy offered for total points in the textile section of the Women's Institute division at the fair.

Six members submitted 14 articles, including knitted garments, rugs and samples of needlework.

Mrs. J. Martin is institute president, and the entry was arranged by Mrs. Alan W. Smith. Members whose work was used in the exhibit were Mrs. L. C. Kidd, Mrs. R. W. Cains, Mrs. H. Wadams, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. N. E. Fairweather and Mrs. Smith.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Baldev Singh, 512 Hillside, $25, no driver's licence.

Donald M. Sanford, 4975 Prospect, $15, no eyeglasses, and $10, no trailer licence.

William Walpole Watson, 2144 Fernside, $5, failing to wear chauffeur's badge.

October Start On Saanich Hall

Building to Serve Police, Fire Groups

By AB KENT

An early October start is forecast for construction of a quarter-million-dollar public safety building serving Saanich with everything from a fireman's lounge to a steam-heated jail.

For the first time it brings police and firemen under one roof, providing both departments with an adequate physical layout.

To police it means a great step toward independence from other departments, severing the need to borrow Victoria city courtroom and lock-up, for example.

BIG FIRST STEP

To other municipal departments the new structure at Patricia Bay and Vernon—the heart of the urban centre of Saanich—means the first step in a civic centre, to include next a health and welfare building, then a municipal hall, if plans proceed according to expectations.

Final specifications on the two-storey split-level building were due from architect R. W. Siddall this week, the preliminaries having been approved by fire and police chiefs.

A meeting of a special building committee headed by Reeve George Chatterton, with councillors Leslie Passmore and Joseph Casey, may be arranged next week to go over the final plans.

Tenders to begin work on the approximately three-acre site may then be called, with the construction following in about 30 days.

The concrete, masonry and glass screen building will be erected on the highest point of the overall seven to eight-acre site paralleling Patricia Bay Highway, but will have its main public entrance off intersecting Vernon Street.

From the small third-storey firemen's quarters—three floors from the rear ground level, but only two from the front level—there will be a full circle view of urban and rural Saanich as far as Christmas Hill and Royal Oak.

Outstanding features of the building, redesigned since the site was moved from the opposite end of the block near Haynes Road, are its hose-drying tower for the fire department, and a striking tree-studded public concourse leading to the public corridors, courtroom and a joint control room taking the place of separate alarm and radio facilities.

Working access to the police department is from the rear, off Vernon, although all enquiries will be handled at the control centre for both departments.

The main floor will have offices for police and fire chiefs, clerk of the court, prosecutor, and magistrate, with interview and witness rooms near the courtroom.

40 PRISONER'S BOX

Absent from the courtroom will be the traditional prisoner's box. Instead, an accused will sit in a small enclosure adjoining counsel's table, just below the magistrate's dais.

On the lower level are the rest of the police offices, including future crime laboratory, darkroom, fingerprinting, a gun room and 25-yard pistol range, and a juvenile department.

The four-cell jail will have visual control from a window in the central point, manned around-the-clock.

"It will be as sanitary and modern as it is possible to make it," said Chief W. A. Pearson. From its terrace floor to its stainless steel bars, cleanliness will be the order.

Besides the steel-lined cells there are two spares—for women or mental patients—each with individual lighting, ventilation and steam heat; wash basins, toilets and drinking water.

BENNETT DECLARES'INTERESTED PARTY' IN BERLIN PROBLEM

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld said today the United Nations is an interested party in the Berlin problem and has a right to make its voice heard if the situation becomes a threat to peace.

Hammarskjöld said, however, that at the present time the world organization, with its large membership, cannot aspire to be a focal point in efforts to solve the problem. He indicated that the first step in solving problems such as this must be big power negotiations.

The secretary-general advanced these views in the introduction to his annual report to the General Assembly.

Air Access
Challenged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has warned Russia that any interference with Allied access rights to Berlin would be "an aggressive act." It said Moscow would be held responsible.

The comment was made in a White House statement approved by President Kennedy and U.S. Secretary of State Rusk. The statement described as "false" the latest Soviet note in which Russia charged that West German spies and saboteurs are being flown into Berlin.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government posed a threat to the Western allies' link with Berlin in a note published today.

It said Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government is interfering illegally in West Berlin's affairs and demanded that agitators be kept from using air corridors into the city.

The 700-word note was delivered Wednesday to the U.S., British and French embassies in Moscow. It said the three countries, "utilizing the lack of control over air communications, are clearly abusing their situation in West-Berlin."

'FLAGRANT BREACH'

"There was a flagrant breach of the agreement reached in 1945 under which air corridors were set aside for the three Western powers, on a temporary basis, to ensure the needs of their military garrisons, and not for subversive and revanchist (vengeance-seeking) purposes of West German militarism."

The note was interpreted by Western diplomats here as a sign that one demand to be made by Russia at future negotiations over Berlin will be the banning of transport to any West German representatives into West Berlin.

And it could be presumed that the Russians would demand the right to screen passengers transported there as well as transported out. They do not now have that right. It would immediately seal off the major escape route of East Germans who have been assured of a way into West Germany once they got across the border into West Berlin.

The note also was considered another effort to test the nerves and determination of the West in protection of the West Berlin population.

British sources regarded the Soviet attitude as extremely serious. They noted the Russians never before had challenged the Western powers over the right to carry anyone they please over air corridors to Berlin. Planes on these routes are operated by U.S., British and French companies.

DRIVE TO SEPARATE

As viewed by diplomats in Moscow, the note appeared to be aimed directly at separating Berlin's Western enclaves from the Western mainland in a drive to make the city more dependent upon East Germany. Berlin is 110 miles inside East German territory.

If the demands were fully heeded, all West Germans Continued on Page 2

U.S. Troops

(Times News Services)

BERLIN—American officers handed out tear gas grenades to a U.S. detachment guarding the West Berlin border today after Communist forces loosed a stream of water against photographers from the powerful nozzle of an armored car.

The incident at the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint ended without further Red action.

The brush at the Friedrichstrasse came as a crowd of about 300 curious West Berliners milled about a U.S. Patton tank on guard there.

The Communist water-armed armored car moved up after Western cameramen closed in to photograph the East Berlin scene and ignored a Red policeman's signal to move back. The water gun did a bit of spraying—nothing too serious. But at that point the American troops were issued the grenades.

Meanwhile, a new Communist restriction of travel from East Germany has been disclosed. Foreigners living in East Berlin and East Germany have been barred from leaving the Red-ruled country since the Communist clamp-down on refugees was launched Aug. 13.

Spokesman for the Swedish and Norwegian consulates in West Berlin said the Communist authorities had informed the consulates it was not possible for their nationals to travel to the West in the present circumstances. The Communists indicated the restriction was temporary, but did not say how long it would last.

Exit visas have been refused to foreign residents since Aug. 13, when the Communists slammed shut the West Berlin Continued on Page 2

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Five houses were destroyed in a fire that raged into the northeast coast village of Brookfield today and a 20-bed hospital was threatened.

There were no details from the village which at last report had not been evacuated. It was not known how many patients were in the small hospital.

The fire was one of a series that has been threatening first one community, then another, on the province's fire riddled northeast coast for more than two months.

RESORT THREATENED

On the south coast of the province, a raging fire jumped the road and was racing for Swift Current, a resort settlement of about 600. Residents were reported to have fled their homes, probably in boats. The main highway leading from the settlement was blocked by fire.

On the northern coast the tiny twin communities of Davisville and Main Point were said to be beginning to evacuate.

Communications to the coastal villages were impossible and officials here were too busy with a new fire development to be immediately available for further comment.

It was believed the women and children, in part at least, had boarded the federal icebreaker Wolfe and the transport department vessel Acadia in preparation for leaving their villages. The villages are believed to have a total population of less than 500.

Meanwhile firefighting equipment was flown from Montreal today to help battle the fires.

Twelve pumps and other supplies were airlifted to Gander this morning, following by a few hours 18 pumps and several thousand feet of hose.

Water bombing planes sent from Quebec and Ontario were operating as part of firefighting force that included more than 1,000 men.

Access Right
'Absolute'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The state department said today the Western Allies have an "absolute" right of "unhindered" access to Berlin and freedom of movement within the city.

A spokesman cited international agreements reached with the Soviets in 1944, 1945 and 1949 and said, "There can be no question about the continuing validity of Western allied rights."

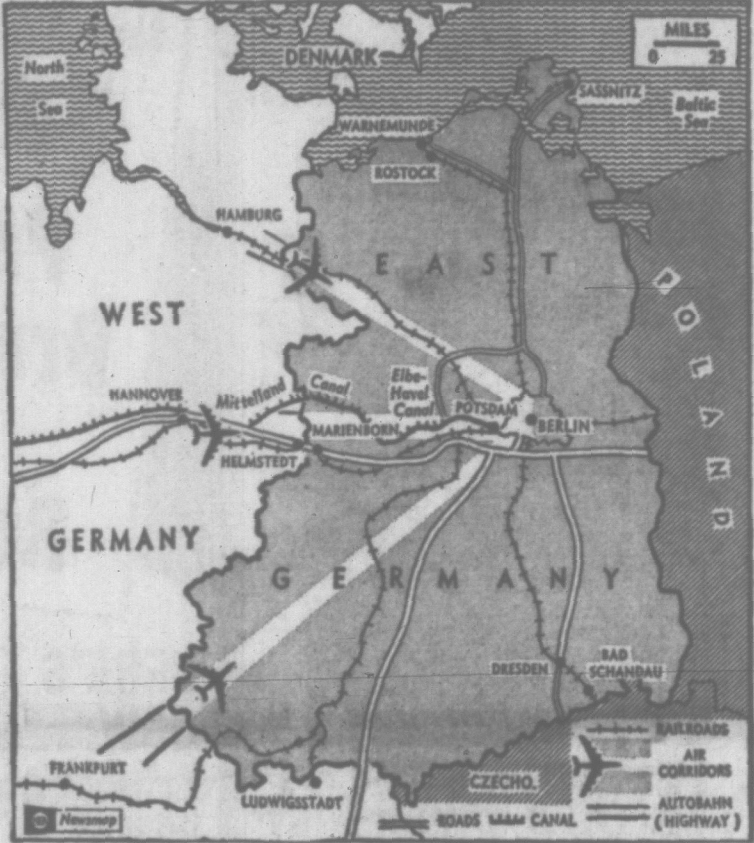

The state department was expected to issue a formal comment later today.

U.K. Rockets
For Germany

LONDON (Reuters)—A British anti-aircraft missile regiment will move to Germany in the latter part of September, the war office announced today.

The surface-to-air guided weapons regiment is equipped with Thunderbird rockets.

Asked if the regiment would go to Berlin, a war office spokesman said: "I do not know. They are going to Germany."

MAIN transportation routes into beleaguered Berlin, including three air corridors threatened by latest Russian note, are shown above.

Immediate Start Due
On Peace Power Roads

By FRANK BUTTER

The highways department is to start work immediately on access roads to damsites on the Peace River—first step toward construction of the B.C. Electric's big hydro power project there.

"There is a tremendous urgency to get started before the bad weather," Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the new public company said Wednesday.

He said first contract for the Peace power project will be awarded within four to five weeks. It will be for construction of a pilot tunnel to divert part of the river flow at Portage Mountain damsite, about 20 miles from Hudson Hope in northeastern B.C.

Dr. Shrum said all the material is ready for B.C. Electric's application to the water rights branch of the lands department for a licence to develop the Peace.

"It will be made within a few days," he said.

Approval is expected to be a formality.

The access roads will probably run from Hudson Hope, already linked by a road to Fort St. John, to the two Peace damsites at Portage Mountain and about five miles down river, a point called "Site 1."

He said further takeover of remaining assets of the parent company, B.C. Power Corp., depended entirely on its officers, and he did not know when they would come to terms with the government.

He was again cautious about the prospect of reducing power bills. But he said economy was one of the main objectives in the takeover.

"There have to be economies—there will be economies," he said confidently.

'Arrangement
Very Fair'

By FRANK BUTTER

The B.C. Electric takeover will go ahead as approved by the legislature without a change in terms, Premier Bennett said today.

Mr. Bennett told a press conference if any members of the legislature had voted against the takeover bill at the special session Aug. 1 he would have called an immediate general election.

He said critics of the terms of the deal made a noise "all out of proportion to the numbers of their people."

'VERY FAIR'

"This is a very fair arrangement," he said. This statement applies both to the deal offered B.C. Electric preferred shareholders and for future takeover of remaining assets of the parent company, B.C. Power Corp. at $38 a share.

"The bill was passed by the legislature as is—unanimously—not by me," said Mr. Bennett, who returned to Victoria Wednesday after three weeks in San Francisco and eastern Canada.

If MLAs had stood up against the bill, he added, "we wouldn't have proceeded with the bill, we would have gone right to the people."

Mr. Bennett also said he is convinced he can sell B.C. power to the U.S. for "a fair, adequate price."

This could apply to both the Peace River, to be developed publicly by the B.C. Electric, and to the Columbia, plans for which are still going ahead as usual through the B.C. Power Commission.

"We want to build the Columbia—certainly," said the premier.

He said the power commission is spending half a million dollars a month on drilling and engineering at the sites of three Columbia dams.

Public hearings on the project will be held at the end of August, he said.

He said time would tell who had sought the best deal for Continued on Page 24

'NO PROMISES'
ON BCE RATES

B.C. Electric consumer rates will probably be cut, but no promises are being made, Premier Bennett said today.

"In due course I would expect reduced rates," he said, now that the company is publicly owned.

"But I'm not making any promises."

Cubans
Support
Tunisia

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Cuba charged today that "mercenaries" are being marshalled at Guantanamo Bay and in Puerto Rico "to be used against the independent and small countries" of Latin America.

Cuban ambassador Mario Garcia-Inchausti told the general assembly's special session that French "imperialism" at Bizerte was akin to "imperialism" of the United States at Guantanamo.

He said the huge U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay "does not exist to protect the territory of the United States."

"It exists against Cuba and to fight against Latin American liberation," he said.

But while Garcia-Inchausti dragged Guantanamo into the Bizerte debate, he made no suggestion that it must be evacuated by the United States.

The French-Tunisian dispute concerning the Mediterranean base of Bizerte, he said, "is not only a question of Tunisia but of all countries that have had to withstand colonialist aggression."

Garcia-Inchausti placed Fidel Castro's Cuba solidly behind Tunisia in its fight with France.
